$129 million natural gas operation set for H'berry

By JERRY WISE

Dominion Resources, Inc., one of the largest gas and electric holding companies in the nation, plans to construct a $129 million natural gas storage facility in Hackberry, it was announced this week.

Information concerning the facility will be given to the Cameron Parish Police Jury at its meeting at 5 p.m., Monday, Jan. 7. Also, information will be provided to residents of Hackberry at a community meeting to be held at 5 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 9 at the Hackberry Community Center.

Paul Briggs, Dominion spokesman, said his company has purchased three salt domes on a 187-acre site adjoining the Strategic Petroleum Reserve facility at Hackberry and will store up to 17.6 billion cubic feet of gas in salt caverns.

The project will be in the planning stage during 2002; in construction in 2003; and in service in 2004.

Construction work will include installing compressor facilities, pipelines, and brine disposal facilities. Some 200 to 300 workers will be hired during construction with 6 to 8 permanent jobs being provided. The company will hire more local people if available.

Briggs said that natural gas will be brought in from production facilities throughout the area as well as from offshore. The gas will be stored for various companies and will be piped out as needed.

Dominion Resources is headquartered in Richmond, Va., and its principal subsidiaries are Virginia Electric and Power Co. and Consolidated Natural Gas Co. The latter operates in all phases of the natural gas industry, including exploration for, and production of, oil and natural gas in the United States.

All residents of Hackberry are invited to attend the community meeting at the Community Center. There will be door prizes and refreshments will be served.

Beach restoration finally on the way

By: VANESSA EVERETT (Southwest Daily News)

Rodney Guilbeaux is riding Cloud Nine. He has preached, pleaded and pestered for 23 years to get a beach restoration project done along the Cameron coast. Finally, it's going to happen.

The project will rebuild approximately five miles of beach along Holly Beach, Constance Beach, and Ocean View Beach. It will build a sand-fill, raising the beach 5 feet and extending it past the current shoreline nearly 100 feet, then constructing a slope to the ocean floor.

Randy Hanchey, assistant secretary of the state Office of Coastal Restoration and Management said, "It will probably look like some of the beaches people remember from days long ago."

The $19 million project will take sand from offshore and deposit on the eroded beaches, providing beach and protecting both La. 82 and the neighboring marshes.

Guilbeaux said the chenier, or ridge of high ground, where the highway runs, is the only thing keeping the sea out of the marsh. He said if that chenier is breached, thousands of square miles of wetlands would quickly become the Gulf of Mexico. Wildlife would suffer and homes would be lost.

Already much of the chenier has eroded away. He said that Gulf Beach has lost 732 feet of shoreline since 1956 and Constance Beach has lost 742 feet of shoreline since that year. Already, waves washing over the road have added enough saltwater to the marshes to harm the habitat and animal life. Guilbeaux maintains that it will only get worse if this project is not completed.

Last year, the state Department of Natural Resources funded an independent study of the problems in the Holly Beach area. The study cost $644,000.

The study found that Louisiana needed to do exactly what Guilbeaux had been saying, repair the beaches and protect the chenier from erosion.

Members of the Coastal Wetlands Planning Protection Restoration Act committee, also known as the Breaux Act Task Force, got together to talk about it.

Guilbeaux said that finally, 100 percent of the agencies on the task force voted for the project. The agencies involved were the Office of Coastal Restoration and Management, Environmental Protection Agency, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Natural Resources Conservation Service, National Marine and Fisheries Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Governor's Office of Coastal Activities and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

NOAA funded a fourth of the cost, the state Department of Natural Resources funded another fourth, and the Breaux Act Task Force paid the rest.

The project will protect between 10,000 and 50,000 acres of wetlands and coastal properties.

Hanchey commended Guilbeaux and other locals for their ceaseless dedication to the project. "They have been absolutely indispensable in getting this approved."

The contract should be awarded in February 2002, then construction should begin in May 2002 and be completed by December 2002.

In addition to that project, the Department of Natural Resources plans to modify and repair 11 of the 85 breakwaters. They will be raised by about 2 feet, and some of them will be lengthened by 40 feet, some by 60 feet, and some by 80 feet. That side project will take place in February or March. The breakwaters will minimize the wave action hitting the shoreline and eroding it away.

Visits cancelled

Senator Jerry Theuissen's aide has cancelled his regular visits to Cameron Parish until further notice due to the aide undergoing surgery.

4 library branches are slated

Four community branches of the Cameron Parish Library may be opened during 2002, according to Parish Librarian Charlotte Trosclair.

Bids are expected to be opened on Jan. 17 for branch buildings at Grand Lake and Hackberry and negotiations for a site at Johnson Bayou are being held. In addition, the police jury will consider leasing a site for a Grand Chenier branch at its meeting Monday.

The Hackberry building will be constructed across the highway from the Multi-Purpose building next to the parish barn.

The Grand Lake building will be next to the Multi-Purposes building there.

Both buildings will be on parish owned property.

Trosclair said tentative plans are to open each branch from 1 to 6 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

Branch librarians are expected to be named at a later date.

H'berry project told

Louisiana and several parishes soon will begin spending $25 million to help pay for restoration of coastal areas used for offshore oil and gas exploration.

The money, released last week, comes from the Federal Coastal Impact Assistance Program. Congress created the onetime program last year after it rejected the Conservation and Reinvestment Act, which could have given Louisiana up to $300 million from outer continental shelf oil and gas revenue.

The largest state-chosen project will help restore Holly and

Duck caller champ to be parade marshal

Eli Haydel, national duck calling champion and waterfowl caller manufacturer, will be the Grand Marshal for the Louisiana Fur and Wildlife Festival's parade Saturday, Jan. 12.

Honorary parade marshals will be Jonathan Cogar of Grand Chenier, 2001 Louisiana High School Rodeo steer wrestling champion; the 18 and under Creole Marlins, 14 and under Cameron Eagles, and Cameron Braves baseball teams.

The parade will line up as usual next to the old Cameron Construction Co. office on the east side of Cameron and will start at the Methodist Church.

The route is the same as last year, proceeding through the town, turning south at the FDF office, and disbanding on the back street.

Eli Haydel was born in Raceland. He began hunting and fishing at a very early age. He also began to play the clarinet and saxophone while still young. This musical ability became an asset as he pursued his dream of manufacturing the perfect call for hunters.

Waterfowl hunting has always been Eli's favorite sport. In 1975, he became interested in contest calling. Since that time, he has won numerous local, state, regional, and national contests. In 1977, he won both the "Louisiana State" and the "Texas Regional Open", which qualified him to compete in the "World Duck Calling Contest."

In 1981, Eli started his own call company, Haydel's Game Calls, Inc., in Bossier City. He has earned his nickname, the Waterfowl Wizard. Eli is a leader and innovator of many new products. His latest catalog contains over 100 items. "Haydel" products are highly sought-after and used worldwide.

Cameron Outdoors

By Loston McEvers

It's that time of the year as January rolls around and folks are celebrating New Years Day with family and friends. We've seen the cold fronts come through and finally we're seeing new ducks down. This past weekend was excellent hunting weather, cold, but lots of new green-winged teals, grey ducks, pintails, and spoonbills down Sunday with another cold front passing through, was like old times in the blind. We saw flocks of teals, some maybe 200 to the flock. Hopefully this can continue through January 20. We're also seeing more speckle belly and blue and snow geese down.

We'll start seeing resident great horned owls nesting and should see the peak waterfowl member in our coastal marshes. You'll see the holly red berries on the holly tree.

It's time to start cleaning and repairing purple martin nest boxes. Our wood ducks will start looking for tree cavities and wood duck boxes for early nesting.

If you're planning to plant native trees, this is the month to do so.

We'll see peak numbers of Canadian geese (ring necked) in our southwest Louisiana rice fields.

There will be lots of waterfowl, deer, and other season closes in the month of January, so look at the "dates to remember."

I know we're redoing our decoy spread and we have retired the mojo duck for a while or maybe for the rest of the season. We started to see the ducks flair and pulling the mojo duck did the trick.

Retirement Announcement

Effective January 2, 2002

Lynn Miller

of Miller's Service Station

"Creole"

will be closing after 43 years of service

This decision was reached after careful and prayerful consideration towards retirement.

Business disappointments - such as unsuccessful bidding efforts with Cameron Parish School Board - losing to an outside business -; lost business to Sheriff Department after credit card functions were discontinued; lost parish business with local hospital and ambulance services - led to my retirement decision.

The only official parish tax-supported businesses available were the Cameron Parish Police Jury, along with Water Dist. #9.

I have enjoyed years of self-employment and I take this opportunity to "sincerely" thank customers and many friends for their years of support.

Good health and God's Blessings are extended to all as we reach the year 2002.
