Hurricane Audrey Museum, birding trail are funded

U. S. Transportation Secretary Norman Y. Mineta has announced the award of nearly $200,000 in federal funds to the Louisiana Department of Transportation for products pertaining to the Creole Nature Trail National Scenic Byway.

The grants, which were allocated from the Federal Highway Administration's Scenic Byways Discretionary Grants program, will fund a mobile Hurricane Audrey Museum, operational costs and a Gulf Coast Birding Trail, according to Monte Hurley, chairman of the Creole Nature Trail National Scenic Byway District.

"The mobile museum would enable our byway organization to preserve artifacts and personal histories of one of the worst natural disasters to strike the United States, as well as interpret hurricanes and tropical storms for the purpose of enhancing the byway experience for our visitors," said Hurley.

The district was awarded $180,800 for acquisition, preservation and duplication activities for the museum, including the production of a video, restoration of photography, and oral histories.

Exhibitory planned for the museum will also explore the technological advancements in satellites, research aircraft, and Doppler radar that now allow computer models to educate and forecast a storm's landfall and intensity of wind, rain and storm surge. These models, along with improvements in awareness, building codes and evacuation standards help save lives and will be essential to the educational component of the museum.

A $15,000 seed grant was also awarded that will enable the byway organization to explore opportunities for the preservation and management of the Creole Nature Trail's natural qualities, as well as for the promotion of the byway as a travel destination.

Funding was also awarded to the Louisiana Department of Culture, Recreation and Tourism for the design and development of the Louisiana Great Gulf Coast Birding Trail. The trail, which will begin on the Creole Nature Trail at the Texas state line and proceed to the Mississippi state line, will provide the state with additional opportunities to enhance visitor experiences; identify complementary uses for byways, such as bike trails; and link to a greater transportation network.

The trail will link directly to the Great Texas Birding Trail and indirectly to the Alabama and Florida birding trails making the Louisiana Gulf Coast a greater tourist destination.

Now one of 72 nationally designated routes, the Creole Nature Trail was one of the first 14 to receive a national scenic byway designation from the Federal Highway Administration in September 1996. It remains the only national scenic byway in Louisiana, and shares the distinction with only one other byway in the Gulf South.

The route, which loops through 180 miles of marshes, bayous and coastal beaches, begins in either Lake Charles or Sulphur, and winds through both Calcasieu and Cameron parishes.

To date, the Creole Nature Trail National Scenic Byway has received FHA grants totaling more than $1.2 million.

School system ranked eighth in the state

On Thursday, May 2, 2002, the Louisiana Department of Education released District Performance Scores for all of Louisiana's school systems. The Cameron Parish School System was ranked eighth of the sixty-six systems. This was the first time in history that school systems were compared to one another based on LEAP 21 and IOWA test scores, attendance and dropout rates.

The data used to develop the comparisons was gathered during the 2000-2001 school year. Cameron Parish School Board's District Performance Score is 95.3. According to Stephanie Rodrigue, Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction, that score is 14.5 points higher than the average district score and is directly attributed to the efforts of students and teachers, coupled with the support of parents. School performance is important in the schools of Cameron Parish and that commitment is evident.

All data, including test scores, reflected the performance of both regular and special education students and included district-wide demographic statistics.

During a news conference at the State Capitol, Governor Mike Foster said, "We began by holding our students and then our schools accountable." And, State Superintendent Cecil J. Picard said, "We're interested in one thing - improving student achievement - and all indications are that District Accountability will be another way to help us continue our trend of improved student performance."

School Board plan approved by Feds

The Cameron Parish School Board has received a letter from the United States Attorney General's office stating that it has no objections to the Board's recently adopted 2002 redistricting plan.

The letter, which came from the Civil Rights Division, stated that this finding "does not bar subsequent litigation to enjoin the enforcement of the changes."

The School Board's plan, which will become effective in this fall's election, keep the present six school board districts, but the boundaries are changed significantly in several instances.

Under the plan, the present school board members from Johnson Bayou and Cameron, will be in the same district.

The Cameron Parish Police Jury also recently adopted an reapportionment plan which differs from the School Board's plan.

The Jury's new plan keeps the present six districts basically intact but adds a seventh district in the Big Lake area.

Police Jury elections will not be held until the fall of 2003.

Grand Lake School bonds are rejected

Residents of the Grand Lake-Sweet Lake area Saturday rejected a $4.4 million bond issue to expand and renovate Grand Lake High School.

The issue failed 224-200 or with 53 percent of the voters against.

In November, a $4.6 bond issue also was voted down 427-219 for school improvements in the district. This proposal had also included a parcel tax.

The Cameron Parish Recreation District 6 tax of 6.93 mills to support Cameron recreation programs passed 90-26 or by 78 percent.

A 2.54 mill tax was passed by voters in Fire Protection District 9 by a 114-18 vote or 86 percent to provide fire protection for the Grand Chenier, Muria and Creole areas.

Fire Protection District 9's 8-mill tax was approved 30-2 or by 94 percent and will provide fire protection in the Klondike area.

WELCOME MAY

May is the month where most of the bass have spawned and bass fishing gets better. It's also the month for large trout on Big Lake, and crabbing is in full swing, but crawfish season comes to an end.

Bluegills begin bedding up, Brown Pelicans are nesting in full swing, alligators and bullfrogs are breeding.

Wild blueberries are ripening and picking of mulberries will take place.

FISHING NEWS

Good reports of big trout in Big Lake, throwing top or She Dog's and Nortin eels. Big redfish at the Grand Chenier jet-ties.

I made a trip to Lacassine Refuge last week and things have surely changed. Usually with 100 plus boats at the landing, on the second day of opening, I was the only one there at 6:15 am. and when I returned at noon, only a total of 5 boats at the west landing and none at the new launch.

I was impressed with the fishing however, I caught a total of 18 bass, three weighed 3.1, 2.10, 2.5. The rest were around 9 to 11 inches in length. I had lots of strikes, but was setting the hook fast, as I had one bass that swallowed the hook and floated up, but it seems all the others were ok. I fished the North Pond, Long Cypress and South Pond and caught bass at each place.

I caught all my bass on watermelon-chartreuse lizards and Gold Spoons with green spot pork chunks. Another boat fishing by me had one over five pounds and two others over four pounds. This really looks good for the pool to come back as it was before the drought, as there's lots of small fish that will spawn next year.

GIBBSTOWN DOG FIGHT

First team: Danny Demary and Doug Logan - three fish, 8.21, also largest bass 5.26 pounds.

Mustangs lose out in quarter-final game

The Hackberry Mustangs were up 5-0 before a series of hit batters and a few base hits had them down 8-5 to the Hicks Pirates in a Class C quarterfinal matchup.

Curtis Welch put the Mustangs on the board first with a solo shot over the right field fence. Welch held the Pirates scoreless through three innings and gave up one run in the fourth and two in the fifth innings before things started to unravel for Hackberry.

The Mustangs almost nearly tied the game in the top of the seventh when two runs were each scored on a fielder's choice before a strikeout ended the game. Welch and Brian Brown shared the mound for the Mustangs.

Brett Stansel led Hackberry on offense going 3-4 with 3 RBIs and 2 runs scored. Brown was also 3-4 with a RBI. Welch had a double and a homerun and Blake Murphy was 2-4 with a run.

Hackberry reached the quarterfinals with its win over

Fairview in the regional round of the playoffs. The Mustangs had a bye in the bi-district round.

Brian Brown was on the mound for Hackberry, giving up only 3 hits, one of them a home run for the Panthers' only run of the game. Curtis Welch led the Mustangs on offense, going 2-4 with 2 RBIs.

The Mustangs finish an impressive season with a 14-3 record.

Salvinia field trip is held

LSU AgCenter watershed agent Kevin Savoie discussed the evasive characteristics of Salvinia molesta with members of the Gravity Drainage District from Sulphur during a Salvinia field tour (April 24) in Cameron.

This floating aquatic plant collects on the water surface of the canal, grows in mats and blocks the sunlight from penetrating the water surface—thereby reducing the growth of other valuable plant, fish and wildlife species normally found in or near the water.

Cameron Parish officials and other leaders in the area are looking for a way to suppress the aquatic plant before it destroys the environmental diversity of the wetlands in the area and further damages the fish, wildlife and agricultural industries of the area.

Salvinia molesta was mechanically removed from the canal earlier this year and also sprayed with an approved aquatic herbicide. However, within weeks the plant returned to cover the water surface in the canal. The plant is difficult to control because it grows fast, floats on and moves with water currents, has the ability to grow in mats on the water surface and large mats of the plant can be found in the local marshes.

Salvinia threatens agricultural industries in the state like rice, marine fisheries, aquaculture, wildlife, hunting and fisheries and hunting lease enterprises. These industries contribute more than one billion dollars to the economy of the state every year.

More than 30 officials and citizens participated in the educational meeting and tour.

Basil great for summer gardens

By Dan Gill
LSU AgCenter Horticulturist

Basil is grown and used in cuisines around the world and it's also indispensable to Louisiana cooks. Better yet, besides having extraordinary taste, basil is easy to grow and attractive.

Not only is basil a great addition to the herb garden, but the numerous shapes, sizes, leaf colors and flowers make basil an excellent addition to almost any garden. Tuck basil plants into unused garden corners, display them among vegetables, edge a flower garden with dwarf types or plant the more ornamental cultivars right among the flowering plants in beds or containers.

Most culinary types of basil are cultivars of the species Ocimum basilicum. The smooth-leaved types that grow 2-3 feet tall are the best known for culinary use. But there also are flavorful crinkle-leaved and ruffle-leaved varieties, all of which make superb pesto and double as outstanding ornamental additions to the landscape.

Basil thrives during our hot, humid summers and asks for nothing more in the garden than full sun to part sun and well-drained soil. It grows quickly from seed, which may be planted into the garden from now through August.

On the other hand, basil plants do not tolerate cold well, so they should not be planted into the garden before late April, and basil is quick to succumb to chilly weather in November and December.

When purchasing basil transplants from a nursery, notice that growers often plant a number of seeds in each pot. This produces a larger-looking product that is ready for sale faster. Unfortunately, 10 or 12 plants crammed together will not grow well in the long run when planted into the garden. So it is best either to separate the plants or pinch off all but the strongest one or two plants in the pot prior to planting.

If you decide to separate them, handle them gently and pot them up individually in small pots with potting soil. Keep them in the shade for a few days so they can get over the shock. Then gradually move them into full sun and, about two weeks after dividing, they should be recovered enough to go into the garden. This can provide you with a number of plants from one purchase.

Allow newly planted basil plants to grow for a while before you start to harvest. For standard size varieties, you generally can start to harvest lightly when the plants reach about 10-12 inches tall.

Individual basil leaves may be harvested for use, but more typically the plant is pinched or cut back. Cut or pinch basil just above a pair of leaves removing no more than a third to a quarter of the plant at one time. This leaves plenty of foliage to keep the plant healthy and productive.

When harvested regularly, basil is bushier and more attractive in the garden. Harvesting and using basil fresh for seasoning is wonderful, since the full, rich flavors are at their peak when used fresh. When basil blooms, the young flower spikes can be chopped and used just like the leaves, and they are excellent to use for garnishes.

Basil often produces faster than you can use it, and when that happens, it's important to know how to preserve the extra. Besides, since basil cannot be grown here in the winter, it is good to save some of your summer production for use then.

The most common methods of preserving basil are drying and freezing. Air dry individual leaves or bundles of stems indoors at room temperature until the leaves are crispy. Crumble them and store in an airtight container. To freeze, chop the basil to the desired fineness, and freeze in a one-half inch layer using a plastic freezer bag.

There are lots of basil cultivars to choose from. Excellent sweet basil cultivars that are best for typical culinary use include Sweet, Green Ruffles, Mammoth, Large Leaf Italian, Sweet Genovese and Lettuce Leaf.

Dwarf cultivars grow 6-12 inches tall, produce small leaves with excellent flavor on ball-shaped or mounding plants and are excellent for small spaces, containers, window boxes and edging. Such cultivars include Spicy Globe, Green Bouquet, Fine Green, Basilico Greco, Dwarf Bush, Minette and Minimum.

Purple leaf forms of basil are very attractive in the garden, as well as chopped fresh into salads. When used to make flavored vinegar, purple basil imparts a beautiful pink tint to the vinegar. Look for varieties such as Purple Ruffles, Red Rubin, Osmin Purple and Dark Opal.

Finally, many scented basil are grown for their more intense basil flavor or unique flavors which are not at all like the typical basil flavor. Many of these are very ornamental. Some interesting choices are the new 2002 All-America Selections winner Magic Michael (very attractive and excellent flavor), Siam Queen, Sweet Dani (lemon), Cinnamon, Lemon, Lime, Licorice, Holy Basil (Ocimum sanctum) and camphor or African basil (O. kilimandscharicum).

Arthritis program to be held

Arthritis is a progressive disease that results in the wearing out of the joints' surfaces. It affects millions of people each year, with symptoms that include chronic inflammation, stiffness, and moderate to severe pain. The condition can lead to limitations on normal activities and a reduced quality of life for many of its sufferers.

Over the past decade, advances in technology have led to improved treatment options for people with arthritis. These advances include over-the-counter medications, nutritional supplements, new types of prescription medications, prevention programs, and innovative developments in joint replacement materials and surgical techniques.

In honor of National Arthritis Month, Lake Charles Memorial Hospital is hosting a free community seminar called Moving Past Joint Pain.

Dr. Dennis Walker, orthopaedic specialist with the Center for Orthopaedics, will discuss the latest advances in the treatment of arthritis. The seminar will be held on Thursday, May 16, at 6 p.m. in the hospital's Shearman Conference Center.

Seating is limited and pre-registration is requested. Call 477-6450 or 1-800-494-LCMH for more information or to pre-register.

Don't give up on your 401(K)

With steep fluctuations in the stock market, employer reductions in matching contributions, and the Enron retirement plan debacle in the news, it's easy to see why some investors might be tempted to give up on their 401(k)s. But according to the Society of Louisiana CPAs (LCPA), 401(k)s offer significant tax advantages that still make them good investment vehicles.

"First, your contributions to a 401(k) are made with pre-tax dollars, reducing your taxable income and lowering your tax bill," notes Philip J. Gunn, CPA, LCPA President. "Second, the money in your 401(k) grows tax deferred until you withdraw it at retirement age. What's more, while most employers won't give you a 100 percent match of your contributions, they often will give you something. In a typical formula, an employer matches 50 cents on the dollar, up to 6 percent of the your salary."

If you lost a lot of money in your 401(k) and you have at least five years before you retire, you may be able to recover your losses. CPAs say the key is to resist the urge to reduce your contributions. In fact, you should increase -- not decrease -- your contribution level to compensate for investment losses in the past year or two.

Congress recently raised the maximum 401(k) contribution for 2002 and passed a "catch-up" provision for workers 50 and older who need to boost retirement savings. For 2002, 401(k) participants can contribute up to $11,000 to their plans, up from last year's $10,500 limit. And, if you're 50 or older, the limit is $12,000 in 2002. The catch-up amount will increase by $1,000 each year, until reaching $5,000 by 2006.

Avoid making the mistake of overreacting and putting too much of your money in "safe" instruments like government investment contracts, bond funds, and money market funds. You may protect yourself from losing too much money, but you'll have a tough time keeping pace with inflation.

To find a CPA who can help you with your personal and financial matters, visit the LCPA's Web site (www.lcpa.org) and take advantage of the CPA Locator Service. It's free, fast and easy to use.

Literary programs held by Cameron Library

The Cameron Parish Library received a grant from the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities (LEH) to host a family literacy program and adult reading program last year.

"The program, Prime Time Family Reading Time, targets children who are experiencing difficulty in reading and their parents in an effort to foster a lifelong love of learning through reading," says Charlotte Trosclair, director.

Each week families with children aged six and older meet with a storyteller and a discussion leader to explore different children's books, learn good read-aloud and storytelling techniques, and engage in group discussions.

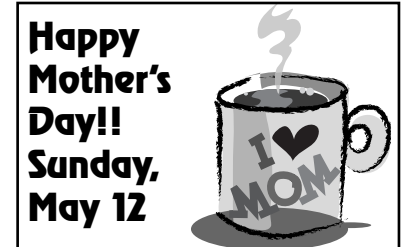

Participants are also introduced to the many resources and services available to them at the Cameron Parish Library. A pre-reading activity is available for younger siblings aged three to five.

The Folktales RELIC Program adult reading program compared and analyzed the variety of folktales created by the primary ethnic groups of the present population of Louisiana. They also examined the familiar tales, in the folktale genre, the culture and geography with generates the stories, and their connections to myth and legend.

The Folktales RELIC Program was a six-week series of readings and discussions conducted by Dr. Delma Proter of the Department of Languages at McNeese State University. The six week program was held at the Cameron Parish Library with adults traveling as far as fifty miles to attend the acclaimed program.

Cameron Parish Library was one of only six libraries receiving the award for the RELIC program. The Prime Time Awards was given to twenty libraries across Louisiana including the Cameron Parish Library

"Angel in the Sky"

You were our angel on earth who guided us through life. Giving unconditional love, through your life, keeping us together as a family, protecting us with your life. You were more than a mom, you were our best friend. You stuck with us until the end.

Then our fragile hearts shattered that horrible evening, when death fell upon you.

My body became weak from the sorrow and pain that still torments within. Our safety net of life had gone, we began to fall, for now we stand alone.

You are no longer our Angel on Earth, you have become our Angel in the Sky watching over us in a way like never before, our guardian angel in the sky.

JOHNSON BAYOU LODGE

We learn that Blue Buck Lodge, L. D., was organized on Johnson Bayou, Cameron Parish, on the 27th ultimo, and are gratified to hear that our Masonic brethren in Cameron are fully alive to the importance and value of Masonry. They have a commodious lodge hall in the upper story of an entirely new building, and their furniture, jewels, etc. are all new.

We wish them abundant success. Cameron is perhaps the only parish in Louisiana in which intoxicating liquor is not sold, and with its fertile soil, its hospitable and intelligent population, wonderfully healthy climate, and the entire southern border lined by the Gulf of Mexico, it offers unusual inducements to immigrants.

SULPHUR-CAMERON MAIL ROUTE

Willie Rutherford was awarded the contract for carrying United States mail between Sulphur and Cameron on his bid of $1,803 a year for the star route.

The contract was awarded on second advertisement asking bids on the route after the first advertisement had drawn only one bid, that of Jess M. Daigle at $2,995, which was ruled unsatisfactory by postal authorities.

Action on the Lake Arthur-Lowry route is being held up pending outcome of efforts of local postal authorities to establish RFD service between the towns.

AIR CONDITIONING OF JAIL IS 'HOT SUBJECT'

The air conditioning of the Cameron Parish jail almost turned into a "hot subject" at the Cameron Parish Police Jury meeting Tuesday.

Sheriff Claude Eagleson appeared before the jury to call attention to the fact that the grand jury had recommended air conditioning of the jail and that he had already asked the jury to put install it.

Parish Architect Sonny Hackett said he had made a preliminary estimate some time ago and that the cost would be around $4000.

Juror Butch Crain said the jurors had discussed the matter before, but had taken no action because they didn't want prisoners to think they were going into a hotel instead of a jail.

C. A. Riggs made a motion to turn the matter over to the jury's ways and means committee.

Sheriff Eagleson, obviously peeved that no immediate action was being taken on his request, told the jury to "forget about it."

However, other jurors assured the sheriff that they intended to give serious consideration to his request at the committee meetings.

Humors were better later in the day when the jurors and newsmen made an inspection of jail. They found the jail to be in a very clean and up-to-date condition.

The several prisoners in jail at that time were not bothered by the heat as the day was cool, but it was easy to see how the jail with all of its iron walls and bars could pretty hot during the summer.

LIBRARY BOARD AIRS VIEWS

A misunderstanding about some fire extinguishers was the subject of an exchange of views between the Cameron Parish Police Jury and representatives of the Cameron Library Board Tuesday.

Mrs. Helen Colligan, library board member from Hackberry, said the board was surprised to receive a bill for some fire extinguishers that had been installed in the library without the board's knowledge.

She said that the librarian, Mrs. Mary Brand, had no authority to pay for anything unless it was approved by the board. She also said she felt that the library board should be advised of such actions taken by the jury.

Parish Treasurer Garner Nunez said he would like to explain the matter. After the grand jury's recent report that the courthouse needed more fire extinguishers, he had asked the Cameron Fire Chief, Ray Burleigh, to make a survey of other parish buildings to see if they, too, needed extinguishers.

Nunez said that both the library and health unit had no extinguishers at all and he had ordered them with the permission of Police Jury President, W. F. Henry.

Henry said that the jury would pay for the extinguishers if the library did not have the funds to do so.

Mrs. Colligan insisted that the money wasn't the problem; it was the library board not being consulted.

Mrs. Colligan also asked the jury how it arrived at the more than $4000 that it was deducting from the library's tax funds for keeping the library's books and other services.

Nunez explained that of the total taxes collected for special districts by the police jury, 11.7% went to the library. Therefore 11.7% of the police jury's expense in keeping books on this district was charged to the library.

Henry, as president of the police jury, is ex-officio member of the library board. He said he 'was guilty of not making the library board meetings' and said he would try to work for better understanding between the library board and jury.
