So this year has been what some might call Chaotic. In a school that is constantly growing things can get quite Crazy. We're a school full of Artists with our own artistic INDEPENDENT style. But with all these strangers running around and tearing apart our school, it becomes complicated to express yourself. Through all the trouble of the 2010-2011 school year, people might say we are ORIGINAL or maybe even full on frantic. Honestly though, the best way to describe the situation is...

Construction

Chaotic Construction

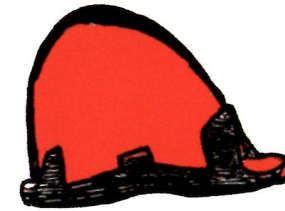

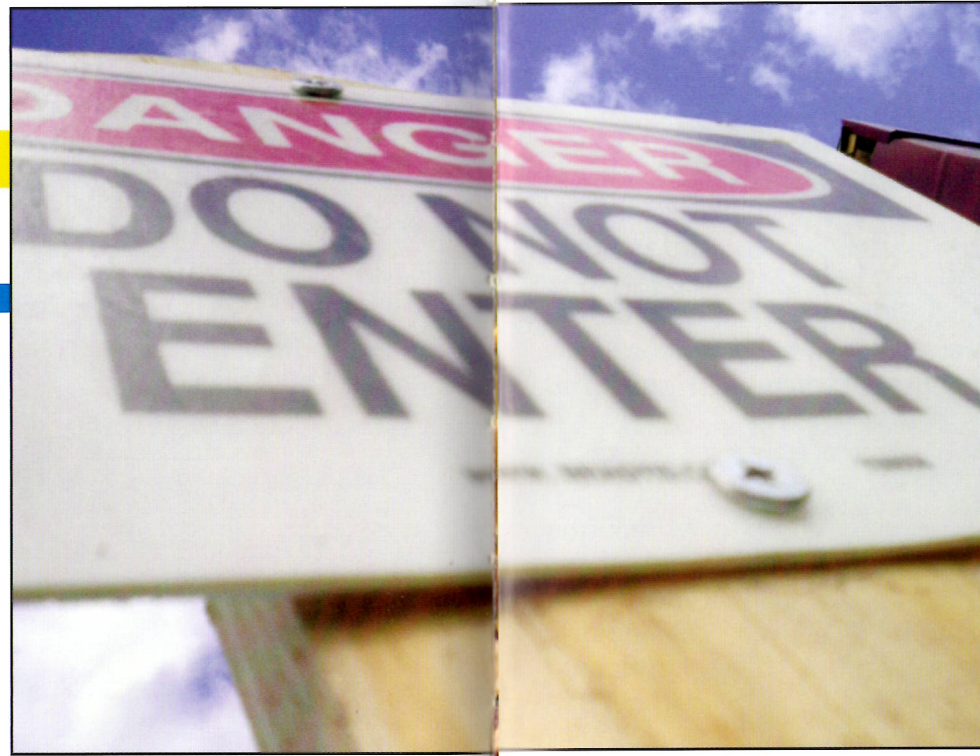

a new year with new surroundings

At the beginning of the school year, many construction projects began. Grand Lake High School was full of strangers constantly making noise while working. At first, students didn't really mind the banging, but as the year went by frustration began to build up.

It became hard for students to concentrate once the roofers began to construct and repair the school's multiple roofs. When putting up the new marquee, parking spaces located in front of the school became limited. Outdoor construction made getting in and out of the school difficult for both faculty members and students. Many students felt disappointed or doubtful about the new gym being completed before the school year was over.

However, by the end of the school year, students could see how the chaotic construction was turning the school into a new personalized Grand Lake High School.

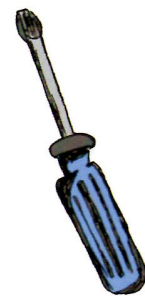

1. STOP DO NOT ENTER. While making it obvious to the student body to not use the double doors, the students were not happy to hear they had to walk from the high school hallway to the front lobby to get to the student parking lot.

2. END OF THE LINE. During the process of getting a new roof, safety purposes keep the front lawn off limits to every student on campus.

4. CAUTION CONE. While setting up the brand new marquee in the high school parking lot, caution tape and cones were placed to prevent the seniors from parking in a few of the senior parking spots.

3. CONSTRUCTION MADNESS. When construction was taking place, a caution fence was placed by the agricultural building to block students from the workers and the machines that were being used to build the new gym.

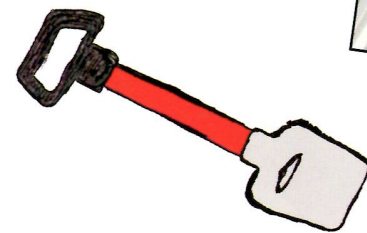

CHAOS ALMOST COMPLETE. When finishing the walls to the gym, everyone was excited to see there is only one more wall to completely close in the gym.

CONCRETE CATASTROPHE. While building behind the school, workers were hauling heavy equipment in to begin the process of constructing the new back gym.

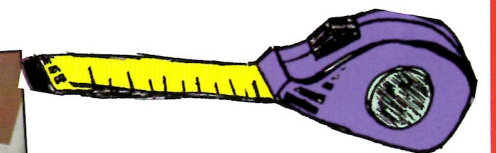

RAISE THE ROOF. As construction workers raise heavy machinery to renovate the new roof, many students became anxious.

DIGGING DESTRUCTION. After finishing four walls and a roof, there was plenty to be done to the new lobby floor for the new gym.

WOOD WORKING. With wood boards lying on the ground soon to become the walls of our new gymnasium, many students were anxious for more.

ARCHWAY OF RECOGNITION. Looking as if plain steel beams, they are soon to be the new archway into the gym. The archway is planned to display a basketball in the corner.

1. Silly Bandz
When Silly Bandz are worn they simply look like colored rubber bands, but when taken off they reveal different shapes. From glow-in-the dark bands to animal-shaped bands, there are many different varieties that can be worn to express one's personality. "At first I thought they were stupid, but then I saw the glow in the dark bandz, and they caught my eye... in the dark," Boyd Broussard(11) said.

2. Sandals
Sandals, or best known as "Jesus shoes", have become extremely popular. With such a broad array, these shoes can be found in almost every girl's closet. "I love wearing my sandals because they are fashionable, and they are also comfortable. My sandals match just about anything I wear," Katelyn Babineaux (10) said.

3. Apple Products
Though they are known for the iPod and iPhone, Apple also produces laptops and has recently come out with the new iPad. Whether it's their products sleek look or their advancement in technology, many teenagers use their products for not only entertainment but also for school. "I got my apple computer because it looked cool and the graphics were stunning," Calley Conner(10) said.

4. Hair Flowers
These accessories seemed to come out of nowhere, but these glamorous flowers put a little beauty to any teenage girl's hairstyle. To add their own personal taste to this trend, girls began to make their own. I have hair flowers in every color, and I wear them with every outfit. I even wore one to homecoming. They express my personality," Sydney Myers (10) said.

5. Hair Feathers
It seemed as if one day everyone showed up to school with feathers in their hair. They started off as one or two tiny colored feathers, but soon students were wearing seven or eight at a time. "I got hair feathers because I think they're cute, and they are the latest fashion trend," Rebecca Dupont(10) said.

6. Neon Bowling
"Friday night lights" has a new meaning with neon bowling: a new attraction for teenagers. While teenagers bowl, bright lights glow throughout the bowling alley and music fills the air. A group of friends and I went neon bowling every Friday. It was so fun, everyone I knew was there," Jensen Bertrand (10) said.

7. Toms
Not only are Toms stylish, but they also support a great cause. Every time a pair of Toms are purchased, another pair is sent to a child in need. "Toms are pretty rad, because they're cute and are for a good cause," Emiliagh Creel (10) said.

8. gLee
The new TV show "gLee" features the story of a high school Broadway musical club. Millions of people tune in every Tuesday to watch this two-time Golden Globes winning show. "It is the best show ever. It has awesome music and amazing-looking guys which is the best combination ever," Dallas Strodder (8) said.

9. Power-Balance Bands
Many have raised the question as to if these bands really work, but whether they do or don't they are still seen on many wrists. These Power-Balance Bands are said to help one maintain balance throughout daily activities. "Power- Balance Bands give me reassurance that I will never embarrass myself by tripping," Holland Conner (7) said.

10. Taylor Swift
Wearing cowboy boots and a sundress Taylor Swift captures the hearts of a variety of music listeners. Many girls are able to relate to Taylor's relationship-influenced songs. "Taylor Swift has always been an inspiration to me. Going to her concert is an unforgettable memory," Alanah Theriot(6) said.

Victorious Spirit

The anticipation builds from the beginning

There is one week that each hornet waits for; one week when everyone shows his or her school spirit. After five months of anticipation, Homecoming week is when everyone is excited to go to school. Once the students walk down those hallways on Monday morning and see the streamers everywhere, balloons galore, and writing on every window of the school and every car, they know it's that time of year again. The atmosphere is so insane; you have to be a hornet to be able to stand it. Katie Fruge(12) said, "Grand Lake has the most spirit I have ever seen! I have seen other schools, but their spirit is nothing compared to ours. We are crazy!" During the pep rally with all the screaming and yelling to win the spirit stick, students can't even hear themselves think. If you have a voice the next week, you are lucky. This year the seniors won the spirit stick out of 6-12 grade.

Almost every individual at this school has some sort of Hornet pride. Whether it's playing a sport, yelling at the pep rallies, or even just wearing maroon and gold for games, hornet pride is evident. Kent Doxey(10) said, "Grand Lake spirit is amazing, supertabulous, and awesome! When I see Maroon And Gold everywhere at the games, I think Maroon and Gold dog!"

Above: WRITE-IT-OUT. While decorating the school with spirit on Sunday, the day before homecoming Monday, Rebecca Monceaux(10) writes her name on her class sign. Each grade had a sign for its class that each student could sign. Monceaux said, "We, the cheerleaders, decided to make these signs to get more students to be involved in their class and take part in class spirit."

Below: GO GREEN. Brushing the color green on the freshman sign, Kylie Davidson(9) helps decorate for her class. Each grade has a specific color on color day and the freshman wore green. Davidson said, "Mrs. Sharon Picou came up with our slogan, she is so creative. I had a good time making the sign with all my classmates."

Above: END OF THE WORLD. While fixing the zero on 2012, Boyd Brousard(11) decorates his class sign with the color blue. Every grade came up with catchy slogans, and the class of 2012's was "We are the reason the world is ending." Brousard said, "It took about a day to draw, trace, and paint the sign, and Mrs. Canik was such a big help with the composition of its design."

Above: GO DIEGO GO. It's character day and Brycen Savoie(8) is dressed as Diego from Nick Jr.'s "Go Diego Go". As he was strolling down the hall, he gave a big thumbs up to being a child's hero. Savoie says "It was funny to see all of my friends' reactions to the costume I had."

Above: GETTING DOWN. Coach Howerton busts a move in the gym. Coach had decided to dress in a costume that looked like someone from the 70's. "I went to Party City in search of a great costume for decades day, and I found one," Coach Howerton said.

1. HORNET BIRTHDAY. December 10th was the day of the homecoming pep rally, and the day of Jordan Hebert's(12) birthday. At the pep rally, the whole gym sings "Happy Birthday" to Hebert while his friend Justin Sullivan(12) gives him a hug. Hebert said, "I was so suprised, and I never expected it. It was the best present ever."

3. HORNET RAP. At the homecoming pep rally, Trenton Dupuis(12) shows off his rapping skills to the entire High school and Middle school. While Dupuis rapped, the boys basketball team cheered him on. Dupuis said, "I decided to rap this song because I love this school, and I'm the next Eminem. I practiced this about 35 times, no exaggeration."

2. SPIRIT ROYALTY. At the Homecoming pep rally, Nicholas Victorian(10) and Shelby Thomas(11) high five for their spirit win of royalty. Each year the cheerleaders choose the homecoming queen and king by how much spirit they had during homecoming week. Thomas said, "I was shocked when I heard them say my name. I was not expecting it because I hadn't won any of the other individual day awards."

SIGN MAKING. As homecoming week comes to an end, Carolina Jasso(11), along with other juniors, meets at Chelsea Guidry's(11) house to paint signs for the traditional homecoming pep rally. Every grade had their own section of the gym for their signs.

THROW ME SOMTHIN' MR. Riding their decorated parade float, school mascot, Howie and cheerleaders, Halie Stevens(11), Brooke Bertram(10), and Katelyn Babineaux(10) throw beads and candy to the yelling crowds. The parade was longer than those in previous years and more people attended.

GETTING FIRED UP. Attending the homecoming bonfire, students socialize with their friends while the homecoming maids introduce themselves. The bonfire was held the night before the big game to help pump up not only the basketball players, but their fans also. "It was pretty legit and firey, stated senior basketball player," Jordan Hebert(12).

VICTIM #1: Jackets stuffed with toilet paper, juniors, Jasmine Miller and Boyd Broussard rush to demolish senior, Jordan Herbert's yard with paper before Hebert returns from his basketball game. Hebert was the first senior victim of the week. "We were excited when we finally got to roll a house because most of the seniors were watching their houses and Megan Aguillard and I both spent over $100 on toilet paper that needed to be used," stated Miller.

PREPARING FOR THE NIGHT. Preparing for homecoming, couple Nicholas Victorian(10) and Joslynn Gray(10), help put on each other's crousage. Before going to the dance the two of them, along with many of their classmates, took a limo to eat at Kyoto Japanese Steakhouse.

DANCE THE NIGHT AWAY. Making the most out of their last homecoming dance, seniors, Ricky Richard, Julie Dowden, Alysha Hackler and Karen Miller dance to a favorite song together. The group formed a circle as other students began dancing in the middle of them. "I was sad about it being my last homecoming, but it was a time of celebrating with all my classmates," stated Richard(12).

A Year of New Beginnings

The excitement started when the parade was lined up at the 4-H office. The Junior princesses, the lunch ladies, and the new mascot, Howie, were ready to throw candy and be seen by all the screaming students. Back at the school, the wood was piled up and ready to be lit for the first time in two years. Once everyone arrived at the school, the varsity cheerleaders welcomed students with a dance and cheer. The fire was lit, and Howie was happily greeted by everyone there.

The next day was full of homecoming spirit with the pep rally and the basketball games, but many students anticipated the homecoming dance which was held Saturday. Girls were getting their hair and makeup done, guys waited until the last minute to put on their formal attire, and parents were charging the batteries to their cameras so they could capture the night their children would want to remember forever.

For the first time, a breathalyzer test was given to students before they entered the dance. Some of the unlucky ones, those who didn't show up thirty minutes before the dance started, were stuck in line for at least an hour. After the worst part, the breathalyzer line, the dance went on. The punch fountain was broken and girls went on having dress problems throughout the rest of the night, but in the end all was well.

Early Birds

They don't always get the worm

You know what they say, "The early bird gets the worm," but is this always true for the students of Grand Lake High School? Even the most studious students have trouble staying attentive first and second hour. "First and second hour are my hours where I'm just waking up. I stay awake long enough to hear what I need to; then when third hour comes around, I'm ready to crash. This could be changed by a good night's rest, but I choose to procrastinate through most of the night," said Justin Conner(11).

For some students getting away with sleeping in class isn't always easy. Dylan Copper (10) keeps a "B" average even if he is too tired to function first hour. "In first hour, I am always too tired to pay attention, and my teacher is always on my case," said Copper.

On the other hand, learning in the first two hours of the day can be an advantage. "Though I am sometimes tired, I find it easier to learn in the morning rather than in the afternoon because at the end of the day I'd rather be at home or at cheer practice," said Calley Conner(10).

TIRING TESTING. Sleeping in first hour Algebra I, Casey Dupre(9) and Dylan Hays(9) take a snooze after working hard on their End of Course test. "I thought the test was just slightly hard, but it was tiring after," said Hays.

CLASS MASQUERADE. Posing for a picture in Ms. Fletcher's first hour English class, some of the Sophomores show off their masks from the drama Antigone each year. "I enjoyed making the masks even though it was difficult," said Brooke Bertram(10).

AT ATTENTION. Paying close attention in Mrs. Manuel's Geometry Class, Jensen Bertrand(10), Rebecca Monceaux(10), and Ethan Precht(10), take notes during first hour. "I stay motivated in school by studying with my friends," said Precht.

TEST FACE ON. In her test mode, Peyton Lannin(8) concentrates while taking an online test in Mr. Broussard's Louisiana History class. Mr. Broussard made the transformation from paper test to computer because after students take a computer test, they can automatically see their results. Lannin said, "Computer test are better for me because I have terrible handwriting."

1st hour

Below: PASTING PLANES. During second hour, Coach Bergeron's American History class makes model airplanes. Seth Barbery(11) and Justin Conner(11) look for the correct piece to paste on their model. "It was fun and time consuming making the planes because we didn't have to write a lot of notes," said Conner.

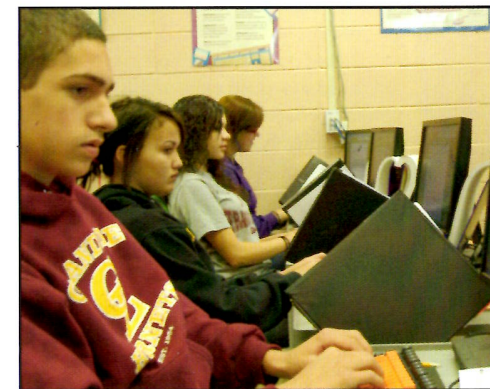

Above: SCIENCE OF THE LAMBS. Getting their hands dirty, 7th graders in Mrs. Courtney Verzwyvel's class dissected lamb eyes as a project for life science. Students always anticipate this project. "At first the smell was gut wrenching, but then I got used to it," said Holland Conner.

Left: HUMAN VS. SHARK. Working together, Sophomores, Lexi Conner and LeAnne LaRocca dissect their assigned sharks in Mrs. Aimee Young's Biology I class. Every year students are forced to smell the stinck while dissecting their shark. "I think dissecting the shark was pretty cool, but very gross," said Conner.

2ND HOUR

Right: TYPIST. Working hard in IBCA, Casey Dupre(9), Krystan Miller(9), Vivian Reyes(9), and Lacey Boudreaux(9) type in Mrs. Robinson's class. To be able to have TOPS when a student graduates, they must take IBCA. "I think this was a magnificent opportunity for us to be ahead for college," said Reyes.

Tik Tok Clock

When anticipation takes over

After running what feels like miles and pushing tons of sixth graders out of her way, Bethany Trahan(10) only to find a long line waiting. Waiting seems to be all students do around Grand Lake.

Classes never seem to go by fast enough for those students who sit and constantly watch the clock. "The worst thing to wait for during school is the last five minutes of my Spanish II class! It never ends," said Jordan Hebert(12).

No one can handle standing in the lunch line while all the upper classmen get to cut. Shyla Gordon(9) said, "I usually bring a lunch, but if I have to eat, it's like finally reaches the bathroom 10-15 minutes before I get to the front of the line!"

Anticipation builds up when students wait to get their grades back, especially on big tests or projects. Mylon Richard(11) said, "If it's Mrs. Manuel's class, you may have to wait ten years after you graduate to get some grades back." This happened to Coach Howerton; Mrs. Manuel gave him back a 100 years later that he had recieved on a test his senior year.

Above: TEEN PARENTS. During FACS II class, Andrew Ogea(10) waits to receive his Real Care baby doll. The class had to take care of the dolls as if they were real babies for one week. "To me taking care of the baby wasn't that hard. Mostly because, being a single parent, everyone wants to hold and take care of it. Not only that, but the babies actually turned off at night so we could sleep," said Ogea.

Above: STUDIOUS STUDENTS. Paying close attention, Victoria Thomas(9), Alesha Widcamp(9), and Blair Little(9) sit in class and listen to their third hour teacher. "In class I try so hard not to get distracted, but it doesn't always work," said Little.

Left: CHEMISTRY CHAOS. As juniors Chelsea Guidry, Chanler Borel, Halie Stevens, and Lauren Hebert sit in Mrs. Manuel's Chemistry class, they work on the assignment. "My favorite part of chemistry was the labs," said Hebert.

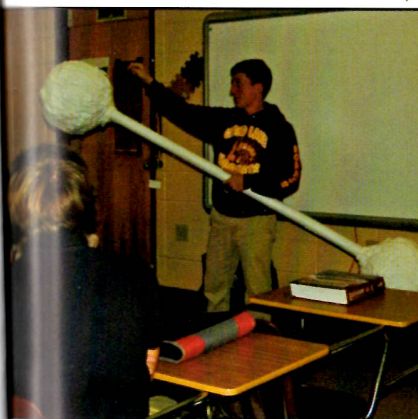

MATH GAMES. Taking a break from regular assignments, Jonathan Quinn(12), Brady Saltzman(12), and Dwayne Blanchard(12) play "Pay Day" in their Business English class. "This class was a new experience in teaching because it dealt with preparing students for the real world," said Mrs. Delores Young..

4th hour

HOTEL FRANCHISE. During Coach Ancil's Free Economic class, Joslynn Gray(10) gives her presentation. Students were assigned to create a hotel, and write a report stating how many employees their hotel had and the duties each employee was responsible for. "Building the hotel was challenging, but also fun," said Gray.

BIG LITTLE. With the assignment of creating either a larger or smaller model of a real life object, Javen Little(12) presents his oversized q-tip. Students were given this assignment after reading and studying a story about giants in their English IV class. "It took a long time to come up with a way to make a giant q-tip, but once I figured it out it was only a matter of engineering it to perfection because it was huge. I wanted to make it as realistic as possible by using real cotton," said Little.

TALKING POLITICS. Carefully listening to the guest speaker, sophomores attentively sit at their desks. Jonathan Perry, state representative, answered questions that students had prepared for him.

3rd hour

Right: PUZZLING BONES. During Equine Science, Mrs. Montie's fifth hour class works hard to put the bones back together. The class had to figure out which place the bone of the horse's leg went. "Learning the different parts of the leg taught me a lot and it was very interesting," said Austin Styron(10).

Left: TYING IT ALL TOGETHER. Propping up her twinkle toes, Hannah Arabie(7), demonstrates how to properly lace a ballet shoe. Mrs. Williams' seventh grade English class was assigned to write a demonstration essay, as well as demonstrate the process in front of the class. "I was tying the ribbons on my pointe shoes," said Arabie.

Above: SPECIFIC CHALKER. Chalking on her beloved chalkboard, Mrs. Delord teaches her Algebra II class during sixth hour. Mrs. Delord must have yellow chalk rather than your average white chalk because as we all know, she is not your average teacher.

Below: FONT FASHION. During Journalism 1, students participated in the annual "Font Fashion Show". For this event, the students had to dress up like a font of their choice. During the fashion show, other students and teachers came to cheer the participants down the runway. "My favorite part was strutting down the runway. I had a lot of fun," said Shyla Gordon(9).

Hunger Rush

Stomachs cry out for food

"What's for lunch today? Walk into a classroom during fifth hour and you're sure to hear these four words escape a ton of students' mouths'. Food is inevitably present in every students' mind instead of their stomachs'. Since students don't get the chance to escape to the cafeteria until 12:45 at the earliest, it's no wonder foods are dancing in their minds during fifth hour. Counting down the minutes until the lunch bell echoes down the halls, students never fail to incorporate the topic of food into their 'educational' classroom discussions. "I have Health fifth hour, and of course everyone is starving, so we always beg Coach Fendley to let us out early if we finish our notes," said Lauren Biven(9). So if you're ever asked what's on the minds of fifth and sixth hour students, your best bet is including food in your answer.

5th Hour

Chaotic Year

"My life has been so chaotic because Michelle Obama keeps dictating my life with all of her health regulations. No nachos or cinnamon rolls? My year is chaotic because of my mom. Her fro is distracting with all its glory and she pushes me intellectually," said Manuel.

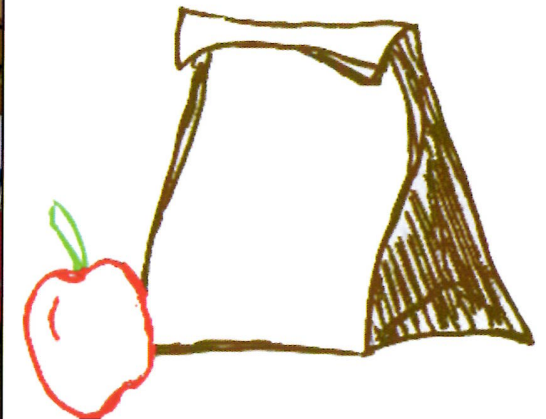

Colleen Manuel (11)

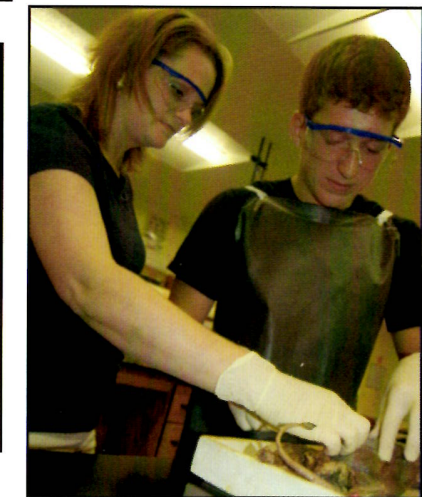

Right: FRUIT DECOR. During third hour, Mrs. Poole's students, Robin Tolbert(12) and Recia Guillory(11), played around with some tasty treats. The class was using multiple fruits to make a fruit basket. "Carving the fruit was very different for me, but it was fun," said Guillory.

Left: EXPLOSION EXCITEMENT. During Mrs. Manuel's Chemistry class, Boyd Broussard(11) and Colleen Manuel(11) wait anxiously to see if their chemicals will explode. The class performed a distillation lab as an experiment. Manuel said, "We used all the legit stuff like a torch flame so hopefully something would go BOOM!"

Above: WOOD CARVINGS. In Ag I, Casey Dupre(9) carves his name and number into a piece of wood. Students are allowed to personalize their piece of wood as they carve into it. "It wasn't hard to do, we used a router," said Dupre.

Left: ORGAN DONOR. During Biology II, Mrs. Aimee Young shows Javen Little(12) the different parts of the mink. Mrs. Young's students were instructed to dissect the organs.

PREPARING. Matching in their physical education uniforms, students get prepared to play a volleyball game against an opposing team. Every week students play a different sport. "I like to play volleyball because I like a challenge," said Andres Jasso(9).

BURNING ENERGY. During seventh hour P.E., students play wallball before going home. Needing to take time off from school work, they burn all of their energy off playing this game. "From sitting all day in class, I usually have the need to burn off some energy," said Dylan Copper(10).

FUN EXPERIMENTS. Experimenting the Bernoulli's Principle, Keighan Precht(6), Dallas Theriot(6), and Coach Trevor Hebert use a leaf blower, toilet paper, and a timer at a certain angle. They represented how planes fly to their sixth grade Physical Science classmates. "This experiment was really fun and different," said Theriot.

7th hour

CAREFUL EXAMINATION. Studying her lab, Halee Savoie(9) completes a lab experiment for Mrs. Verzwylt's class. The class assignment was to figure out the PLT of certain substances. "This experiment was the most fun out of them all," said Savoie.

As the Bell Rings

After school plans begin

Students spend at least 7 hours a day at school, so it's no surprise that they are in such a hurry to leave. Therefore, it's probably no surprise that students are out of the door before the bell can even complete a full ring. One can't help but wonder, "What are they in such a hurry for?"

For some, when the words "after school" are mentioned, the first thing that comes to mind is "practice". A vast majority of students are involved in various sports, such as cheerleading, which practices after school just like most other sports. "I like cheer practice because it makes me feel like we're one step better everyday", said Lauren Biven(9). For others, a few slightly different words come to mind. When asked what he does after school, Andres Jasso(9) replies, "I usually go play football or something."

As you can see, students have different ideas of after school activities. For some, after school means sports; for others, such as Andres Jasso, they have a different idea of fun. Vivian Reyes(9) is another perfect example of someone who spends their afternoon in a not-so-average way. "Sometimes when we're too hyped up and we want to let out all of our energy, we run up a dirt hill and push each other off," said Reyes.

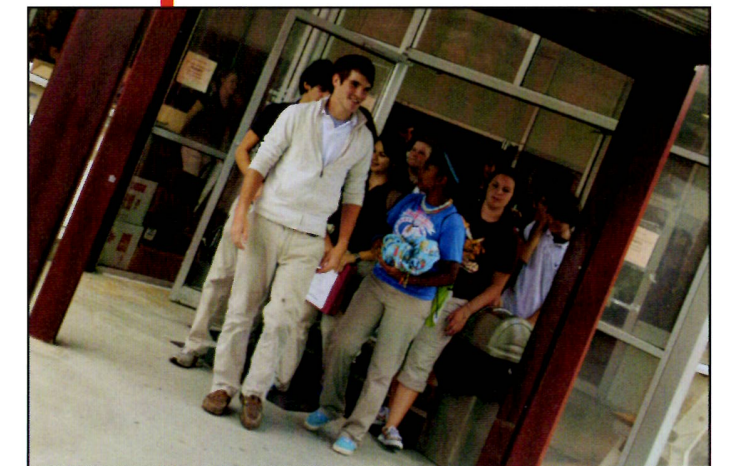

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT. Practicing to perfectly send the ball through the air, Abby Miller(10) is preoccupied with softball practice after school. Softball season begins in January and lasts until April. "We have softball practice every day after school to prepare for games," said Miller.

PLANS AFTER CLASS. Leaving their seventh hour class, Sophomores Morgan Fontenot(10), Marcus Doxey(10), and Wyatt Pearce(10) head off to fulfill their after school plans. "After school, I usually try to hangout with my friends," said Fontenot.

SPEED WALKING. Walking through the parking lot during the last week of school, middle and high school students are anxious to leave.

A RACE TO LEAVE. As the final bell rings, students rush towards the closest exit. The final bell sounds at three o'clock. "I usually try to be the first one out of the school so I can leave before the buses do," said Jameson Picou(10).

FCCLA

1. FESTIVE CARVINGS. Carving a fruit basket, Recia Guillory(11), Spencer Schiele(10), and Robin Tolbert(12) focus on each and every cut. "Carving the fruit was fun, but it also took a lot of patience with the angles. Overall I enjoyed it," said Schiele.

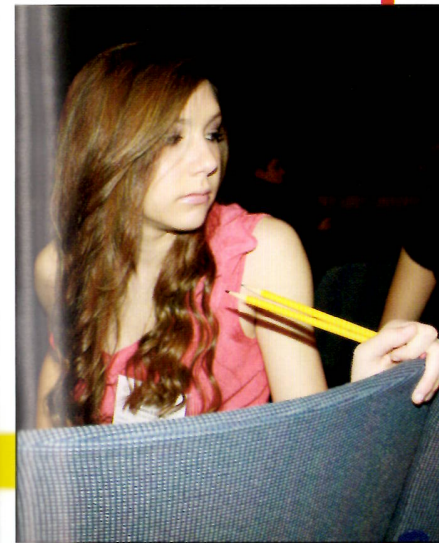

From Top to Bottom: Karissa Trahan, Jade Nunez, Halee Sullivan, Joshua Hackler, Brody Quinn, Michael Milich, Kyndal Berkey, Stephen Poole, Christine Schiele, Alesha Widcamp, Megan Elkins, Shyla Gordon, Krystan Miller, Robin Tolbert, Taylor Smith, Victoria Thomas, Kayleigh Landry, Regan Lejeune, and Mrs. Poole

2. COOKIE WRAPPING. Wrapping cookies in saran wrap, Brody Quinn(10) and Karissa Trahan(10) seal them with a colorful ribbon. To raise money, FCCLA sells cookie grams to students who can send them to anyone they wish. "It was really fun. We got to get out of class to go bake cookies or wrap them, and then we had to pass them out. That was the hard work, trying to find everyone," said Trahan.

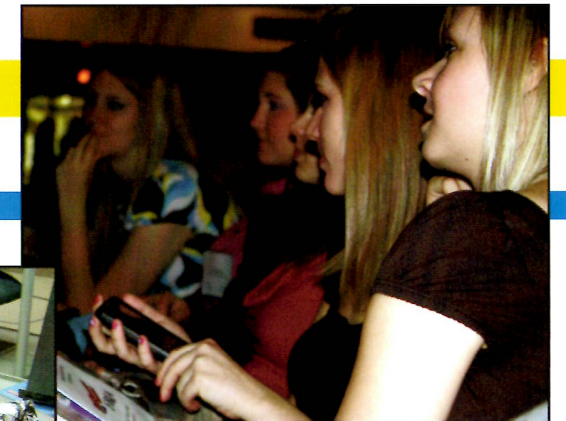

3. CUTE AS A BUTTON. In the process of making buttons, Mrs. Poole cuts each circle precisely. FCCLA sold these buttons at the Fall Festival as a fundraiser. "Selling buttons at Fall Fest was a really good fundraiser," said Regan Lejeune(9).

FBLA

Below: A SURPRISE GIFT. Opening her last Christmas gift, Sydney Myers(10) finds out who her secret santa is. FBLA members were assigned a student to buy presents for every week of December. "I was very excited to find out about my secret santa. I loved all my gifts, thank you Blair Little," said Myers.

Above: RISING ANTICIPATION. Nervously waiting, Julianne Lannin(10) mentally prepares herself for her test. Lannin went to district to test in Introduction to Business Communication. "I was nervous because I only took that course as a freshman," said Lannin.

Chaotic Year

"This year is my junior year which is very chaotic. Mrs. Delores Young gives you four assignments at once and Coach Bergeron gives us a packet that makes me want to cry. Mrs. Manuel teaches a new chapter every week and the workers on the roof stare at us in Art I," said Guidry.

Chelsea Guidry(11)

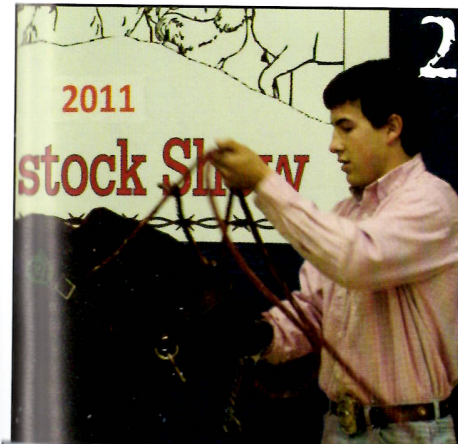

Above: FFA WAY. Jumping for a picture, the Grand Lake FFA team shows their excitement in front of the Indianapolis Mall. Every two years, the Grand Lake FFA team travels to different states for the National FFA Convention. Marlie Mudd(10) said, "FFA Convention was amazing, and I can't wait to go back my Senior year!"

Left: PROUD PARTICIPANT. As Timothy Foreman(9) proudly receives a handshake and a certificate, he keeps his head held high. FFA annually holds a banquet honoring members with certificates and awards. "I have been around agriculture my whole life. When given the opportunity to join FFA, I jumped right in," said Foreman.

Right: SOUVENIR SWORDS. During the Rodeo at the FFA National Convention, Sophomores Joshua Fitkin and Austin Styron pose for a picture. "I had a blast, but we brought the swords to keep ourselves entertained throughout the rodeo," said Austin Styron(10).

1. PIED FACES. Participating in a 4-H activity, Jarrett Nunez(9), gets pied in the face with powdered sugar. The 4-H club took a field trip to New Orleans. "I was shocked and surprised that I got sugar all over me," said Nunez.

2. A CALMING TOUCH. As Joshua Wicke(10) shows his cow, he poses for a picture in front of the livestock show banner. Wicke has been showing livestock for nine to ten years. "My favorite thing about showing is hanging out in the barn and getting out of school. I like knowing how to show off my cattle to keep the name going," said Wicke.

3. PARADE POSERS. During the Fur Festival parade, Colleen Manuel(11), Javen Little(12), and Sydney Myers(10) pose for a picture while representing 4-H. These students are very involved in 4-H, and show younger members what true leaders look like. "Riding in the parade was really fun because I got to throw candy to all my friends," said Myers.

Above: RUNWAY READY. Practicing for their court walk, homecoming maids Lauren Hebert(11) and Kortney Olson(10) make their way to the stage. Many students were called out of class to rehearse for the occasion that takes place before the much anticipated homecoming game. "It was an honor being on court, and it was the first year with the changes so we had to practice intensely the few times we had practice," said Olson.

NEXT IN LINE. Anxiously waiting for their yearbooks, students form long lines. Every year, the Annual Staff hosts a yearbook signing party allowing students to trade and sign each other's yearbooks. "I attend the signing party every year because I like being able to sign all of my friends' yearbooks at one time," said Julianne Lannin(10)

BUSY BEES. During the fifth hour yearbook class, members of the annual staff, Katelyn Vincent(10), Jasmine Miller(11), and Jensen Bertrand(10) work on the yearbook software. All year long, students stay busy working on the high school's yearbook. "Although my favorite part of yearbook class is taking pictures, I also have to write captions for them," said Vincent.

CREATIVE WRITING. Thinking outside the box, sophomores Emileigh Creel, and Blair Derouen work on writing captions for the yearbook. Although it is hard work, it benefits the yearbook. "I love writing captions because it makes looking at pictures in the yearbook more interesting," Derouen said.

Sr Beta

1. MODELESQUE. Modeling the Sr. Beta club shirt, Julianne Lannin(10) and Jillian Derouen(11) strike a pose. The Sr. Beta slogan was "A Volunteer State of Mind." "The modeling competition was different for me, but I enjoyed it," said Lannin.

2. FALL FUN. While working the booth, Jarrett Nunez(9), gives a raffle ticket to a participant. At the Fall Festival, there were many booths for children to play games. "Being able to interact with all the kids working the booth was really fun," said Nunez.

3. PRACTICING PERFECTION. While at a meeting, members rehearse their chant for the district convention. At the district convention, Grand Lake Sr. Beta took first place. "Learning and performing our winning chant was a fun experience," said Megan Elkins(9).

1. IN THE FAST LANE. Kamryn Trahan(6), Cameron Granger(6), and Tanner Olson(6) get set for the go-cart race. While on their field trip for the Jr. Beta state convention, students had fun in Incredible Pizza. "It was really fun and we got to spend time with our friends," said Olson.

2. BREAK FUN. During a break between sessions, a few of the beta girls take a seat and play "Down by the River." Having to sit through long sessions often gets tiring, and breaks allow all members to interact with one another. "The talent show was entertaining because we got to see a lot of amazing performances by other schools," said Allison Ross(7).

3. MEETING NEW FRIENDS. While the Junior Beta convention was at a standstill, three members of the club hang out and mingle with other school's club members. "I competed in watercolor painting, and my painting was out of the wetlands. I placed fourth at district," said Marissa Dupont(6).

So, I was at the basketball games last night. The girls did pretty good! Did you see the new bright gold shoes the boys had on? Epic.

I know!!! They're so AWESOME, along with the new white cheer uniforms! For real. I can't wait for the baseball & softball seasons to start! 😊

Yeah, I wanna go see the girls play on the new field! Did you hear that we have a wrestling team?!

I heard that yesterday! Guess Grand Lake is finally moving up in the world! Haha.

Haha, Guess SO! I saw the track teams running around the school yesterday. Must suck not to have a track to run on!

Yeah, I bet so! I'm sure the girl basketball team is ready to play in the new gym, too!

Hip High-Tops

Boys basketball takes a chance at something new

Watching the boy's basketball team dribble, spin, run, dive, and shoot throughout the game, there is one thing that stands out that never has before. One can't help but notice the new, brightly colored gold shoes that slide and squeak across the gym floor. Tate Savoie(7) said, "They are bright and flashy, something new and different."

Clearly, the shoes make a statement about the Hornet basketball team. David Miller(8) said, "I feel our shoes say we're here, and you better watch out!" As the Hornets fight for a winning victory, the opposing team constantly takes a peek at their feet. "The other team is going to think to themselves 'Wow, their shoes are like the sun'," said Tyler Rosfeld(11).

Just as they do every year, the Hornets fight for a higher title than what was accomplished the year before. "I don't want to be known for our shoes, but rather the way that we play and execute on defense," said Kent Doxey(10).

1. THINKING FAST. Trying to get the ball closer to scoring position, Nicholas Victorian(10) passes to an open teammate. Victorian was a regular starter for the season. "Playing basketball is relaxing for me because I clear my mind and just play," said Victorian.

2. EYES UP. Looking for someone to pass the ball to, Trenton Dupuis(12) checks the court. "Sometimes when I get backed into a corner I start to panic, but I know I can trust my teammates to be there for me," said Dupuis.

3. BREAKING WAY. Dribbling smoothly past an opponent, Lex Conner(12) makes way to the goal. Conner was known for shooting three point shots throughout games. "When I have an open shot and I'm confident, I make my shot," said Conner.

1. THE QUICK ADJUST. With nowhere to go, Jordan Hebert(12) is forced to come to a stop and look for an open teammate to pass the ball to. Hebert has been playing basketball since he was in little dribblers. "It took our team a while to adapt to Hamilton's size, but we quickly adjusted," said Hebert.

2. HOMECOMING PASS. In the beginning of the game against Hamilton Christian, Kent Doxey(10) looks to pass to his open teammate Nicholas Victorian(10). This year the Hornets played Hamilton for the Homecoming game. "Even though our team fell short, I believe we played a great game," said Doxey.

3. LOOKIN' GOOD. In the traditional maroon and gold game, Joshua Wicke(10) dribbles around Ryan Widcamp(12) and drives the ball to the goal. The maroon and gold game is played every year as the Hornet Basketball teams' opening game of the season. "I'm so good, I got 'em all looking," said Wicke.

"The only thing I am superstitious about is my undershirt. I wear the same undershirt for each and every game because I believe it helps me perform better," said Doxey

Unpredictable Injuries

Basketball girls fight back

The Lady Hornets basketball team consists of 18 persevering individuals who work together as one team. With their skills and their encouragement, they succeeded to the second round of the playoffs. Unfortunately, the team lost to Rapides High School in overtime. The Lady Hornets managed to get as far as they did this season even with limited practice time.

With the construction of the back gym beginning, the Lady Hornets basketball team was one of the many teams of Grand Lake that had to share the available front gym. Since there was a limited practice schedule, some of the team members felt they needed more time than they were given. Regan LeJeune(9) said, "We needed to work more on plays, but with no practice time everything was limited."

Not only did the girls suffer from loss of practice time but they also had the challenge of splitting the gym with other sports.

With the limited space and practice time, it was even more of a setback when multiple people were injured. Hayley Trahan(8) and Sheridan Smith(8), along with Regan LeJune(9) and Kallan Mudd(12) were the victims of the injuries. Through all of the inconveniences, the team still fulfilled the goals they set. As a team they improved offensively and stayed strong defensively, which was the main goal. "I grew as a player. At the end of the season, I had to step up and be the point guard which is a huge accomplishment for me," said Shelby Thomas(11).

1. WATER BREAK. During a quick time out, Coach Scott Miano goes over plays as the players refresh themselves. As the players come in, they have a towel and bottle waiting for them. "When you work so hard on the court and the coach yells time out, I get so relieved to know I get to quench my thirst," said Katelyn Vincent(10).

2. HEADS HIGH. Running out with confidence, the Lady Hornets are focused and all set for pre-game. While leading the team out, Shelby Thomas(11) dribbles the ball with her head high to show that she believes in her teammates to perform their best. "Before each game all of the players cheer and act silly in the locker room. It gets me hyper and pumped up to play. Then, when I hear our run-out music, I am super ready to play," said Thomas.

3. TRY AND CATCH ME. Guarding Taylor Whittle(12), Cloie Broussard(9) attempts to get the ball. Annually the team divides in two, and plays each other for the maroon and gold game. "I was extremely concentrated on the ball," said Broussard.

Chaotic Year

I think the construction has made this year at school very chaotic. When they put the fence up in front of the school some stuents had to park all the way at the Rec. Now, they have put a marquee in senior parking so they have to park in other places.

Girls Junior High Basketball

1. WATER BREAK. During the break between the first and second quarter, the junior high basketball girls take a breather while Coach Miller explains a play to them. The junior high team played Kinder. "The most important thing Coach Miller stresses to us is to always hustle," Erica Williams(8) said.

2. AIMING FOR SUCCESS. Receiving a pass from a teammate, Cloie Broussard(8) goes successfully for the shot. Cloie has played on the junior high basketball team for two years. "Keeping up grades in season and having practice the next day is extremely stressful," said Broussard.

3. BREAKING TO GOAL. After rebounding the ball, Ally Thomas(7) races her Kinder offender across the court to shoot the ball. The junior high team later defeated Kinder. "I always try my hardest to reach the goal to score the winning goal," said Thomas.

4. TEAM WORK. During the middle of a play, Cloie Broussard(8) passes the ball to teammate Audrey Harris(8) for the shot. Both Cloie and Audrey are also on the girls varsity basketball team. "I love the game of basketball because it brings people together and I love the team work," Harris said.

Boys Junior High Basketball

Above: PERFECTLY FOULED. While being surrounded by two opponents, Tate Savoie(7) attempts to pass the ball to Lucas Hebert(7). Hebert was fouled by an opponent and made one of two foul shots. "I have been playing basketball for eight or nine years. I started playing junior high in the 6th grade," said Savoie.

Above: STRUGGLE FOR SUCCESS. Lucas Hebert(7) and David Miller(8) attempt to regain possession of the ball. The hornets were playing a game against the Starks Panthers. "Before every game, I put my ankle brace on, turn on my ipod, and to finish it off I crunk out with the boys in the locker room," said Miller.

Right: TRICK PASS. Looking for someone to pass the ball to, Brycen Savoie(8) tries to trick the opponent into which way he will pass. Brycen successfully passed the ball and a two-pointer was scored. "My favorite part about making a shot is the feeling of accomplishment you get from working hard in practice to perfect the shot," said Savoie.

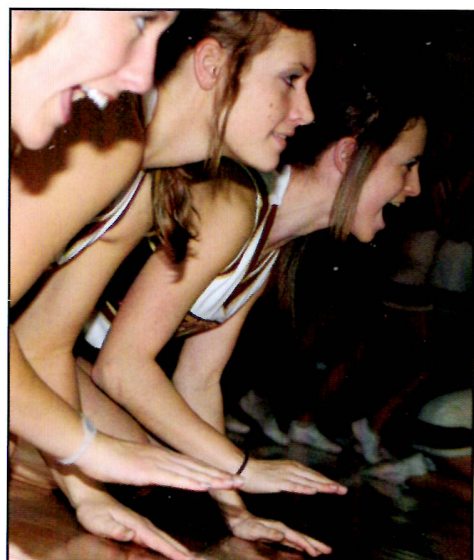

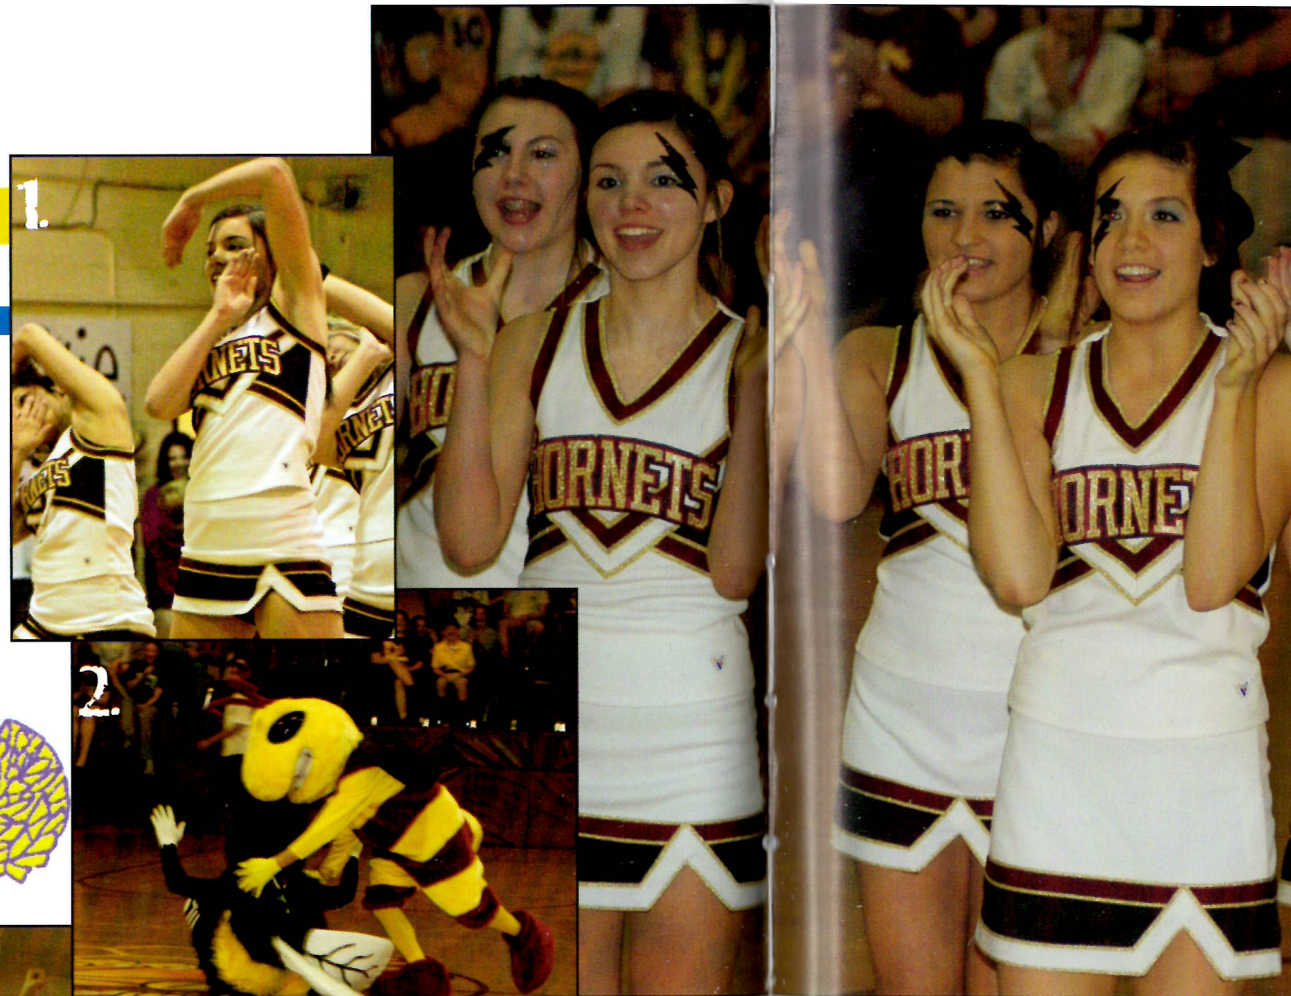

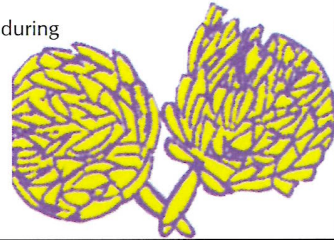

Above: JUMP BALL. Tate Savoie(7) and Lucas Hebert(7) jump for the ball. At the beginning of every game, two players from each team jump at a chance to possess the ball first. "Basketball is stressful because I have to study after practice," said Hebert.

1. DANCING DIVA. As Brooke Bertram(10) perfects this dance move, she flashes a smile to the audience. The cheerleaders perform at both the girl's and boy's halftime of their games. "I love performing because I get to show off my facial expressions to hornet fans," said Bertram.

2. HORNET SMACKDOWN. The night of this game was not only memorable because it was senior night, it was also memorable for many people because Howie the Hornet and the hornet for Hathaway had a smack down to see which hornet was the best. Howie was a new addition to Grand Lake High School this year. "The cheerleaders did tons of fund raisers to pay for me and worked really hard," said Howie.

3. LADY LIBERTY. As Bethany Trahan(10) focuses to stick her liberty, her stunt group supports her foot. The cheerleaders work hard, long hours to perfect the various stunts they perform.

All the Way

Cheering our teams to victory

Grand Lake has always had outstanding fans to cheer on our athletes at every game, but sometimes that just isn't enough. The varsity cheerleaders are always loud, peppy, and cheerful at every game. Even at times when the team is losing, they are always trying to help the teams find a way back to victory. "I always try to be encouraging and help put a pep in the players step," said Brooke Bertram(10).

Our cheerleaders don't just cheer up the teams at games, they also help to cheer up supporting students at pep rallies. The cheerleaders have pep rallies for homecoming, senior night, and even LEAP testing. Sara Richard(9) was one of the pillow dancers for the LEAP test pep rally.

Cheerleaders even help enlighten students on something less than great. The cheerleading squad and school nurses constructed an assembly during breast cancer awareness week to help make the female students better aware of breast cancer, and how it endangers their lives. "As we greeted the students into the gym, we rallied them up by performing a cheer called 'Pink Territory'," said Halie Stevens(11).

NOISE MAKERS. During an intense game, Blair Little(9), Rebecca Monceaux(10), and Megan Elkins(9) attempt to be a distraction to the other team as they shoot a free throw. Elkins was a rookie on the squad. "Even though this was my first year, I felt a part of the squad instantly," said Elkins.

PERFECT PLACEMENT. Carefully placing each motion, cheerleaders perform during the maroon and gold game. The maroon and gold game is held annually. "The maroon and gold game is my favorite game because it is the first time we get to perform in front of all of the fans," said Calley Conner(10).

Above: FOULSHOT CHANTS. As Madeline Russel(8), Tori Smith(6), and Tanner Olson(6) stomp along to the chant, they clap in perfect rhythm. The cheerleaders have many chants that they choose from during each foul shot. "My favorite thing about cheerleading is being around my friends," said Smith.

Left: PERFECT PREP. As Kamryn Trahan(6) smiles, her stunt group works hard to keep her perfectly balanced in the air. Performing stunts requires a lot of practice for the stunt group to perfect. "My favorite thing about cheerleading is flying. I have cheered all my life," said Trahan.

Chaotic Year

"I think what has made this year so chaotic is Mr. Bergeron's tests. All the packets and studying, ough! Another reason is having to set up fundraisers for our prom. The roofers are constantly saying bad words, and that is a horrible influence if you can understand them," said Jasso.

Carolina Jasso(11)

All the Way Through

First-time wrestling team gets through

Wrestling is a new sport to Grand Lake High School this year. The members of the team were Joshua Wicke(10), Jameson Picou(10), Zane Fontenot(10), Kaleb Stoute(10), Brady Saltzman(12), and James Phillips(9). They were coached by Dane Dupont.

weight; this is done by dieting and exercise. Making weight means that you have a weight range and you have to stay in that weight range throughout the year. This is mostly done for fairness in the match. If two people weigh the same, it will be more of a fair match than two people who have totally different weights.

A unique part of wrestling is the uniforms. Wrestlers are only allowed to wear a singlet, which is a one-piece, tight-fitted uniform, usually made of spandex and is used in amateur wrestling. Picou said, "I would choose a singlet over regular clothes because they are awesome and make me aerodynamic! So, I'm like a nimble ballerina." The wrestling team started out this year without their own uniforms so they had to use a set of South Cameron's uniforms. Later in the year, they ended up getting their own uniforms.

This year the team had a few people get hurt and were not able to compete in the state tournament. Wicke pinched a nerve in his shoulder in the middle of the year and could not continue to wrestle. So instead, Wicke was the assistant coach. Also, at the state tournament Fontenot got dehydrated and ended up having to go to the hospital and could not compete. Fontenot said, "Since I almost died, it didn't feel good not being able to compete." Even though some people didn't get the chance to compete, the rest of the team pushed themselves to the limit to try and win a state title.

Another detail about wrestling is that it is a very physically demanding sport. In wrestling, everyone has to make

1. TAKE YOUR POSITION. While at the state wrestling meet, Brady Saltzman(12) prepares to try to take down his opponent. Saltzman was the only senior on the team. "My expectations I had for myself were to stick with it and never give up," said Saltzman.

2. WATCHING AND WAITING. Watching anxiously, coach Dane Dupont and Joshua Wicke(10) are at the edge of their seats. Members were fighting for a state championship title. "My strategy to win a match was to do whatever it took," said Wicke.

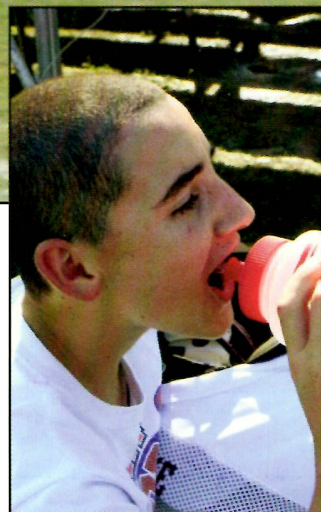

3. PUSHING FOR VICTORY. Giving everything he has, Jameson Picou(10) tries to overcome his opponent and claim his victory. "I always shot and worked for the take down then worked the hault," said Picou.

4. NECK-N-NECK. Staying strong, Brady Saltzman(12) doesn't give up without a fight. This was Saltzman's first year wrestling. "Although it was a lot of pressure, I had fun wrestling at state," said Saltzman.

A HARD TACKLE. As Matthew Nunez(8) leaps and bear hugs his opponent, he gradually makes a tackle. Nunez played running back and free safety. "My favorite thing about playing is going to play the games," said Nunez.

Above: MOVE OUT THE WAY. Breaking tackle after tackle, Matthew Nunez(8) sprints down the field to make a first down. The Hornets played a close game against the Lake Arthur Tigers, but came out short. Nunez said, "The loss was pretty upsetting; I played my heart out. I actually cried after the game."

Left: A COOL DOWN. To cool down, Tate Savoie(7) takes a sip of water before returning to the field. Tate has been playing league football since he was eight years old. "My dad and I started throwing the football when I was about six, and I've been playing ever since," said Savoie.

Above: RUN FASTER. While running onto the field, Tyler Nunez(9) adjusts his helmet straps before lining up. Tyler Nunez played wide receiver. Nunez said, "I like playing wide receiver because I get to catch the football and put points on the board."

Right: BRAVE RUNNER. As Casey Soldier(7) runs the ball, he is started down by many competitors. Soldier was the team's running back and linebacker. "My favorite part about football is playing in games because they are fun, and I also make a lot of memories," said Soldier.

A New Game Plan

The first year of junior high football begins

What has been in the dreams of Grand Lake students for many years now has finally become a reality. This was the first year Grand Lake had a Junior High football team. Everything was new from the coaches, to the players, to the equipment, to the fans. "We became a big family over the past year," said Tyler Fitkin(8).

Starting with nothing can sometimes be a struggle. Learning plays and putting together a team has its challenges. "Not only did I teach the students plays, but I taught them skills they could use on and off the field," said Coach Derek Fendley.

With the demolition of the track and the building of a new gym and softball field, practices were limited. The boys held practice in the outfield of the baseball field. "It was kind of embarrassing practicing on the baseball field and not having our own field," said Anica Logan(6).

With practice five days a week, the boys were ready for playing on the field. The nerves of playing in front of a crowd swiftly eased away for player Bryten Savoie(8). "Football was definitely easier than I thought it would be. After the first game, I got used to playing and was no longer nervous to play in front of everybody," said Savoie.

We await Friday night lights with the up and coming football program. The future varsity of Grand Lake football has been created and will continue to grow together not only in talent but also in unity. "I hope our fans enjoy watching us improve for the years to come," said Garrett Faulk(6).

"When I win a game, I keep everything the same. I eat the same food, wear the same clothes, shoes, hat, and sunglasses. I also keep whatever is in my pockets in my pants for the next game," said Coach Fendley.

Cross-Country

Below: PERFECT PACE. Running side by side, Ross Cunningham(12), and Kent Doxey(10) stay ahead of the pack. Running together helps them to stay on a steady pace and not fall behind. "The crowd was very motivational. If it weren't for them, I would have been walking," said Cunningham.

Above: TRADITIONAL SILENCE. Saying a quick prayer before the meet Vivian Reyes(9), Shelby Thomas(11), Allyson Ross(7), and Nyla Predium(7) hold hands. It is a tradition for the girls to come together before each meet. "We are always nervous before the meets, but we also had faith in God to have a safe meet," said Reyes.

Above: ON YOUR MARKS. At the cross country meet, Grand Lake competes against many other schools. Once the gun shot is fired, the boys take off. "The thought that is constantly in my mind while I am running is to not finish last," said Kent Doxey(10)

Junior High Track

Above: THROWING THE DISTANCE. Giving it her all, Erica Williams(8) competes in the discus throwing competition. While throwing, a coach looked on to evaluate her form. "I throw discus because I am too slow to run and discus is easy to me," said Williams.

Below: HAND OFF. As Audrey Harris(8) reaches backwards to receive the baton, Kamrin Thibidoux(7) places it in her hand. Hand offs are important because if the baton is dropped, the whole relay team suffers. "Grabbing the baton can be difficult, but with practice it comes natural," said Harris.

Above: HUSTLE. Working his way to the finish line, Lucas Hebert(8) hustles at the Bell City track meet. Hebert was the last leg of the relay team. "After I cross the line, the first thing I think of is - I'm glad I am done running, and now I want water," said Hebert.

Above: FLYING OVER. While at the track meet, Hayden Gray(7) competes in the pole vaulting competition. With the support of his teammates, Gray cleared the bar. "Go big or go home," said Gray.

Right: HUDDLED UP. With a quick team huddle between innings, Coach Terry Bergeron shares tips for succeeding. The Hornets had a long road ahead of them trying to gain back eleven runs. "If you always do what you've always done, you will always get what you've always gotten," said Coach Bergeron.

Below: CAREFUL CONCENTRATION. Wearing the number seven jersey, David James Shaw(9) begins his swing. Shaw batted either fifth or sixth in the line up for the Hornets. "This season my batting average was .300, hitting is my favorite part about the game," said Shaw.

Left: STRIKE THREE. Using all his power, Nicholas Victorian(10) pitches the ball to the batter. Being the pitcher requires memorizing the different signals that the coach gives which represents different pitches. "I like pitching because it is a challenge," said Victorian.

Relying on Rituals

Repeating practice for years helps on the field

Look at that pitch

Madison Morales(9)

Above: A CLOSE CALL. After a close call at first base, Lance Thomas(10) hustles back to the dugout. Thomas is one of three left handed batters on the team. "I enjoy playing baseball because I love the game and it is a relaxing sport," said Thomas.

These boots are made for playing, and that's just what they did. The Hornet baseball team's wacky rituals are one of the many things that set them apart from the rest. What other team shows up to practice in cowboy boots, cowboy hats, and boxers for good luck in the playoffs? Our boys definitely set themselves apart from the rest!

Many find it interesting that some of Grand Lake's baseball players have their own unique rituals to help them win games. A few players feel like they have to commit to their rituals before playing in the game. Before every game David James Shaw(9) says he has a Red Bull to play to his full potential. Mylon Richard(11) is somewhat superstitious about buttoning the top button on his jersey. He refuses to button it anytime on game day. "I feel like I have to do active warm ups to win a game," said Kent Doxey(10).

So do these rituals actually work? Everyone seemed to agree after the Hornet baseball team became district champions. In the first round of the playoffs, the Grand Lake Hornets, who were seeded twenty-fourth, were up to play the eighth seeded team, Simsboro. With a tough loss the boys were defeated. However, the boys had a great season whether the rituals helped or not.

Field of Dreams

A new season with a new field

Positive attitudes, teamwork, and dedication are the qualities with which the mighty Lady Hornet softball team started off their 2011 season. After seven years of playing home games on the baseball field, the Lady Hornets now have a field to call their own. Not only did they get a new field, but also a new coach. Former assistant coach, Rachelle Monceaux stepped up becoming head coach. Throughout strenuous workouts, after hour practices, and maintaining their new field, the Lady Hornets never showed weakness.

Through their crazy season they had bumps in the road including: a broken nose, black eyes, stretched muscles, and close calls of passing out. Despite these obstacles, the Lady Hornets began the 2011 playoffs for the state softball tournament in Sulphur at the number thirteen seed. Bi-district was a walk in the park with a 15 run rule on Castor in three innings. For the regional play off game, the Lady Hornets traveled to Pitkin, who were seeded fourth.

Without a question, the ladies jumped on them in the first inning putting four runs on the scoreboard and ending with a victory of 6 to 0 sending the Lady Hornets to the state tournament in Sulphur. Walking into the tournament with a young team, the ladies didn't show nerves. The Friday night quarter-final game against fifth seeded Monterey was a bit rocky in the beginning, but ended with success, advancing them to the semi-finals. Next, they played Oak Hill, who was seeded first. This 8 to 1 loss was upsetting, but it gave them honor with placing fourth in Class B softball state tournament.

This year was filled with several accomplishments and great honors. No one would have thought that morning in Sulphur would have been the Lady Hornet's last game of the season. For JoeAnna Gaspard, the only senior on the team, it was more than that; it was the last game of her high school career. This was an incredible season to end an incredible high school career.

Left: PAYING RESPECT. Before a softball game, the lady Hornets stand united as a team while reciting the Pledge of Allegiance as they anxiously waited to play the game opening the state tournament. "All it takes is a group of peers and a great attitude to form a great team," said Sarah Brauning(11).

1. THREE UP. As the infield huddles up on the pitcher's mound, they share encouraging thoughts. When the girls come together, they all do their own handshakes with each other.

2. SAFE SLIDING. As Rebecca Monceaux(10) slides into third base, the umpire calls her safe. At every given opportunity, players attempt to steal a base successfully; it makes me one base closer to scoring," said Monceaux.

3. THE CROWD GOES WILD. Crossing the plate, Blair Little(9) scores the winning run as the fans celebrate the victory against Starks High School. The two teams were tied until the final inning. "My first thought when I was crossing the plate was thank goodness I scored and didn't get out," said Little.

Runners, Take Your Mark

Making their way through a chaotic year

When the team realized many of their track girls had been injured during the season, they knew it was going to be an insane season.

The team lost all types of players, runners, and jumpers including a very dedicated runner Kallan Mudd(12) from a torn ACL during basketball. Another basketball casualty was a senior runner and jumper Katie Fruge. Despite her injuries she was not about to cease; she does admit needing inspiration though. Her inspiration is one of her best friends and track teammate. Fruge said, "I never felt like giving up because I have been used to performing through the pain in basketball. Although I did need some motivation, and to be honest, it was one of my best friends, Shelby Thomas(11). I wanted to do a good job for her because she has always been there with me and motivates me. So, I push myself as far as my body is capable of."

With all the injuries, the coaches noticed they were going to need some help. They grabbed some of the fastest JV track girls and were amazed with their talents. "Those girls can fly! We are fortunate to have these girls help us out and be part of the team," said Vivian with her support for her team and her best friend, especially during state. Thomas said, "Katie uses me as inspiration and her will to be good in competition, so I went and supported her for the state meet."

Also, Mrs. Kim Montie bears, carries, holsters, and holds up her daughter Darbi Montie(10) for her pole vaulting and running in track.

"In the end through all the hardwork, injuries and with all the support from everyone the girls figured out how to make everything work and did well as a team this season," said Kortney Olson(10). Though the team has to duck flying frisbees, shotputs, and javelins being thrown while running, they all made it through and showed their hardwork during the meets. Mrs. Kim Montie said, "I am very proud of this year's team! There's much more excitement, especially with the seniors." Fruge said, "I am very pleased with myself. Winning state is very hard to do, but going back two years in a row is even harder. Going to state my senior year, I was seeded eighth and ended up placing fourth with a sprained ankle and a pulled hamstring. I lost third place by just a fourth of an inch in longjump. I was also competing against some very great jumpers. You won't always win, but given the circumstances you learn to be content with giving your all."

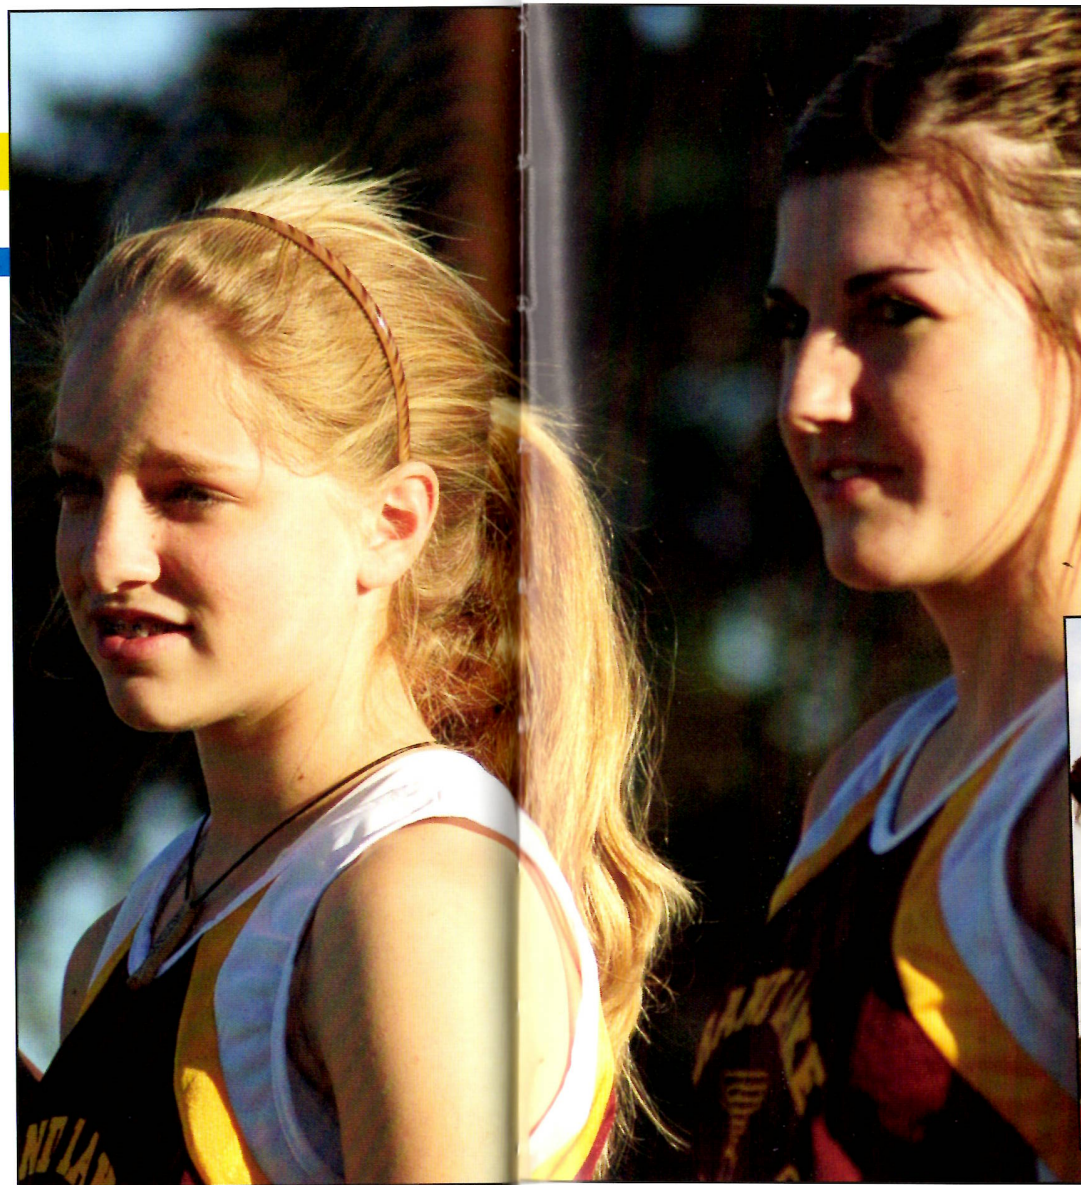

Katelyn Vincent(10) said, "I am very proud of our team. There was much more excitement with all our seniors and we placed in many more events this year. Although we will have to start all over next year, we learned a lot from our very hardworking and talented seniors."

Chaotic Year

"This year has been beyond chaotic. This year our class hosts prom and we have been trying to raise money by fundraising. There has also been many expenses for rings, hoodies, ACT's, pictures, and sports. On top of all that I have to get a job soon so I can drive to school in a hot new car as a senior," said Brauningner.

Sarah Brauningner(11)

1. JUMPING TO NEW HEIGHTS. With perfect form, Coryn Vincent(7) clears the bar in the high jump competition. Even as a seventh grader, Vincent was competing against high school track members. Though it is hard work, high jumping is my favorite event in track. I feel as if I am flying," said Vincent.

2. UP AND OVER. While in the air, Darbi Montie (10) swings herself over the bar to place high in the pole vaulting competition at the Lacassine Track Meet. Montie has been pole vaulting for four years. "It takes a lot of work and strength to get over the bar, but with practice it gets better," said Montie.

Limitless

A race to the finish

Above: FULL THROTTLE. Running at full speed, Blake Widcamp(12) prepares to jump into the sand pit. Widcamp was one of the fastest runners on the team. "I like competing in the triple jump because it's very challenging and there are many factors in a good performance," said Widcamp.

Below: PERFECTION. Demonstrating the perfect stance, Trenton Dupuis(12) gains power to throw the shot put. Dupuis is so dedicated to shot putting, he installed a platform to practice on at his house. "I practiced five times a week and two times a day. I give God all of the glory to my success," said Dupuis.

Below: JUMPING HIGHER. Clearing the bar, Austin Styron(10) makes his way to the next round. Styron was a rookie in this competition. "High jumping is a way to motivate myself, and to beat my personal goals. During the year I was able to be with my friends and make new ones along the way which made the year worth while," said Styron

Right: DEEP CONVERSATION. Going over the track meet schedule Coach Ancil Delaney and Ross Cunningham(12) discuss upcoming events. Coach Ancil has been head of Grand Lake's track program for twenty-three years. "We were talking over his strategy for running the mile race," said Coach Ancil Delaney.

Chaotic Year

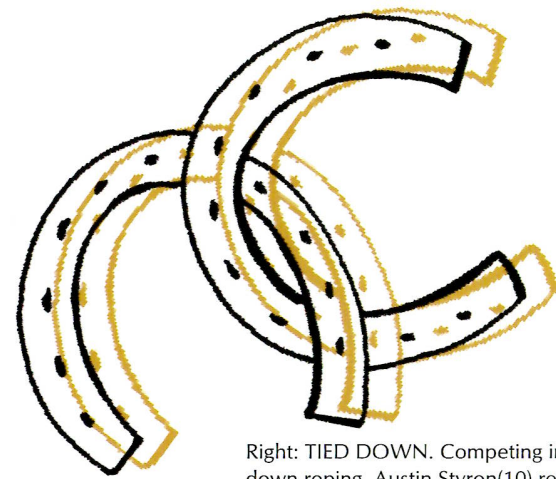

"Junior year has been very stressful! On top of all the homework we have to do, our teachers stress me out also. Me and Mrs. Manuel's fights in third hour make it a little better, but the roofers mess my day all up again. I try to work, but I can't with their banging on the roof. They mess up Chanler Borel and I's beautiful art work," said Hebert.

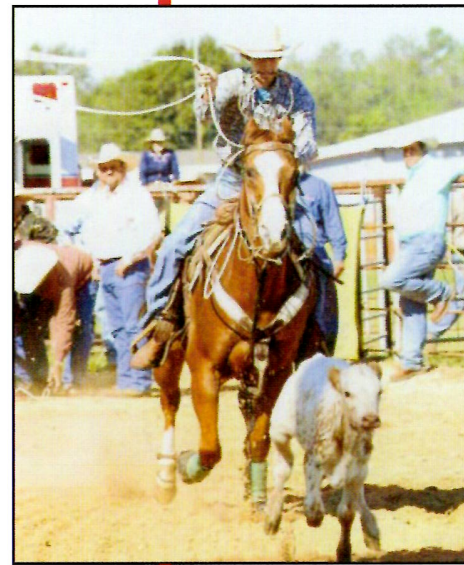

Right: Smiling after his landing, Jordan Hebert(12) finishes pole vaulting. Hebert later placed fourth in this event at the Welsh regional track meet. "I like pole vaulting because it is very challenging in every aspect," said Hebert.

Above: A GREAT ARM. Giving it his all, Tyler Rosfeld(11) throws the shot put. Rosfeld has been competing in the shot put competition for two years. "At practice I motivate myself to work harder. When I get to the meets it all pays off," said Rosfeld.

Right: TIED DOWN. Competing in tie down roping, Austin Styron(10) ropes the calf at a high school rodeo. In calf roping, the contestant has to rope the calf, jump off his or her horse, and tie any three legs together. "Calf roping has been a major part in my life. It has taught me tremendous responsibility and sportsmanship. Also teamwork has been a key to it all," said Styron.

Above: ROPING AT ITS BEST. During the Sulphur High School Rodeo, Rebecca Dupont(10) competes in the breakaway roping competition. At this rodeo, Dupont finished a top competitor coming in first place. "I usually don't get nervous until the person before me goes, but I just visualize what I have to do and it calms me down," said Dupont.

Above: CONSTANT CONCENTRATION. While competing in Eunice, Lauren Dupre(10) concentrates on her horse and exactly what they have to do to place in the poles event. Dupre is currently in her seventh year of rodeo. "I prepare myself by not thinking about the event, listening to my ipod, or talk to people to calm my nerves," said Dupre.

Tough Competitors

A long road to Nationals

When you think of school sports, what's the first thing that comes to your mind? Most people think of basketball, football, or baseball; but to a unique group of kids, the first thing they think of is rodeo. Lauren Dupre(10) says, "To some people rodeoing isn't a big deal, but to me it's my number one priority."

Even though cowboys and cowgirls aren't commonly thought of as star athletes of the school, they are just as important as your average football or basketball player. Each competitor is competing to make the Louisiana High School State Finals Rodeo in Gonzales. The top 36 in each event qualify to go. Dalton Boudreaux

(10) says, "It really is an awesome experience and I look forward to going next year."

Following state finals, the top four toughest rodeo athletes in all events advance to the National High School Finals. Nationals move from place to place every year, but it is currently held in Gillete, Wyoming. For one week during July, people from all 50 states plus Australia and Canada will have the opportunity to compete for a national title. Darbi Montie(10) says, "Even though I didn't do as well as planned, I had fun catching up with old friends from different states while meeting a bunch of new ones!"

Below: A CUTTING CHANCE. Riding a pretty dun horse, Dalton Boudreaux(10) competes in the boys' cutting. Boudreaux is competing for a chance to go to nationals. "I like to rodeo because it is very competitive," said Boudreaux.

Below: TURN AND BURN. Competing in barrel racing, Darbi Montie(10) rounds the barrel. Montie also competes in many other events. "I've been barrel racing since I could walk. I enjoy barrel racing because it's a one-man sport, just me and my horse," said Montie.

I know! They never usually take this long.
For Real! And the senior pictures took even LONGER! Some had to stay all day.
Yeah... they were Really maddd!
Well, at least they got to take their pictures.
Yeah, I guess so.

CREATIVE CAPS. Showing their artwork on their caps, JoeAnna Gaspard, Katherine Ledoux, Jaide Landreneau, and Julia Quinn stand tall. Many seniors personalize their caps by decorating the top. "Decorating my cap was really special to me because it made mine different and showed my personality," said Gaspard.

PICTURES OF THE PAST. As seniors Ricky Richard, Kimberlee Babineaux, and Alysha Hackler sit in the auditorium, they admire their classmates' baby pictures.

TASSEL TURNING. As the class of 2011 anxiously waits, they stand to turn their tassels. The seniors anticipated this moment all year long.

Below: EMOTIONAL SPEECHES. Comforting Alysha Hackler(12), Javen Little(12) gives her a hug. As salutatorian, Alysha gave an amazing emotional speech to her classmates during graduation.

Above: PERFECTION. Before walking onto the stage, Mrs. Aimee Young fixes Ricky Richard's(12) many gown accessories. "Before the ceremony, I had to fix all the senior's collars, and make sure all their stoles and chords were underneath," said Mrs. Aimee Young.

Below: SINGING SOUL. In part of the opening ceremony of graduation, Robin Tolbert(12), sings the national anthem. Tolbert was chosen by her classmates to sing at graduation.

Senior Pep Rally

THE QUICKEST WINS. Raising their hands enthusiastically, a group of seniors compete in the Jeopardy game. Seniors answer questions about their fellow classmates. "This game was really fun because it was all questions about our classmates," said Ricky Richard.

A SPEECH TO REMEMBER. As Trenton Dupuis delivers his senior speech, he rests his arm around Coach Howerton. It is a tradition at the pep rally for each senior to give a speech to the school. "I believe my speech was very heartfelt, and touched my teammates hearts," said Dupuis.

CHORDS OF GOLD. Singing "White Horse" by Taylor Swift, Kimberlee Babineaux(12) completes her challenge for the senior pep rally. Babineaux was told to sing her favorite song.

A SHOCKING REQUEST. During the senior pep rally, Jonathan Quinn(12) proposes to Mrs. Delord. The seniors were asked to do something funny and Mrs. Delord was the lucky one. "The students got a good laugh at this one. I got butterflies in my stomach," said Mrs. Delord.

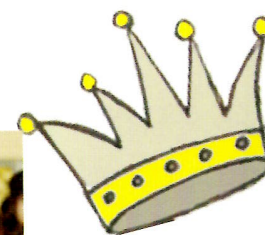

A BORN DIVA. During the Senior Pep rally, Coach Howerton puts make-up on Justin Sullivan(12). Afterward, Sullivan showed off his new look for the challenge.

GETTING DOWN. Javen Little(12) teaches Coach Hebert how to "whop" for a challenge at the senior pep rally. Coach Hebert said, "I felt young again."

2010 Homecoming Court

ROYAL SMILE. Smiling beautifully, Katie Fruge (12) accepts the honor of being crowned the 2010 Homecoming Queen. Queen is chosen by a ballot of votes from the seniors.

Mr. Grand Lake

Ricky Richard

What was your most memorable moment at Grand Lake?

My most memorable moment at Grand Lake High School was beyond a doubt the original fashion show, Beyond the Books. It was so awesome because it all just started as an idea, but we worked really hard, and it turned out into a real fashion show. It was fun seeing my classmates crack through their shell and strut their stuff on the runway!

How would you describe your high school experience at Grand Lake?

I would say my experience at Grand Lake High School created me into the person I am today. When I first moved to Grand Lake, it was difficult to find my place because everyone had already known each other for years, and on top of that I was the only person who looked like me in the entire school, but the students eventually saw me for the person I was and that made my experience. I met some of the best people of my life at Grand Lake High School, and I will always remember how at Grand Lake my friends became my family.

Miss Grand Lake

Kallan Mudd

How would you describe your high school experience at Grand Lake?

My experience at Grand Lake was unforgettable. The small school atmosphere made my class feel like family. We had fights but loved each other. Our class was really close and I'm so grateful we were because it made my time at Grand Lake so special.

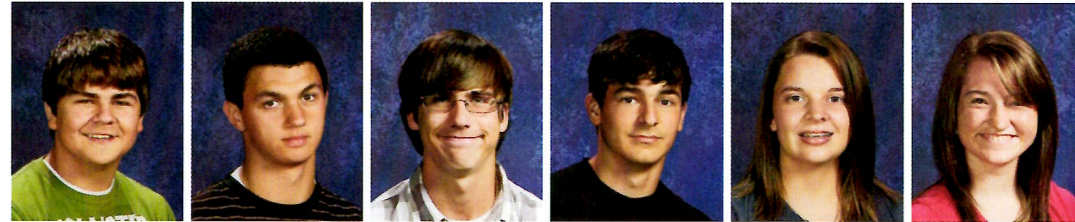

What was your most memorable moment at Grand Lake?

My most memorable moment was the homecoming dance this year. I had so much fun. Dahlen gave a speech that made most of us cry. I think we were all so 'in the moment' and made the most of our last homecoming.

THIS WAY THAT WAY. While decorating signs for Fall Fest, Juniors Jillian Derouen, Hannah Savoie, and Lauren Hebert make signs for the people attending Fall Fest to lead them where they want to go. "I liked decorating for Fall Fest because I got to get out of class," says Derouen.

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY. As students of Grand Lake High and their dates dance along to the music, juniors admire the dance they put on. Months before prom, juniors on the prom committee met in Mrs. Delord's classroom to discuss prom decorations and plans.

POSING POLKA DOTS. Showcasing their spirit during homecoming week, some junior girls dressed as characters from "101 Dalmatians" for character day. Every day of the week, there are themes assigned for students to dress out and to celebrate for the big homecoming game held at the end of the week.

Above: ALL SMILES. Linking arms with her father, Sara Richard(9) smiles to the crowd as she stands waiting for the other homecoming maids. Homecoming maids are chosen by the class of that grade. "It was an honor to be chosen by my class," said Richard.

Below: SMARTY PANTS. Proudly declaring that they are honor roll students, a group of freshmen girls smile with pride. At the beginning of the year, students attend an assembly rewarding good grades. "I felt like I accomplished my freshman year perfectly with honor roll," said Megan Elkins.

Above: PROMOTING CREATION. Having fun while presenting their "Tori Stoires" project, Victoira Thomas and Lauren Biven promote their project. This project required extravagant imaginations and creativity to produce the next "it" product. "We definitely did not hold back on the glitter with this project," said Thomas.

CANDY CRAZE. Rushing to pick up as much candy as they can, Landen Jinks and Matthew Nunez celebrate at their tribe party.

1. SPIRITED STUDENTS. During the homecoming pep rally, eighth graders display their spirit for their teams by shouting. All the classes compete for a spirit stick awarded to them at the end of the pep rally.

2. GET LOW. During the tribe party, Tyler Nunez bends below the limbo stick. "The party was really fun! My team and I had a great time although we lost the challenge," said Nunez.

Above: SOUND OF MUSIC. While in music class, Jennifer Tolbert looks over at her classmate. Mr. Marcantel stood and waited for answers from his students. "We were learning our syllables in class," said Tolbert.

Below: CLASS SPIRIT. As Allison Ross, Kyle Delcambre, and Ally Thomas walk through the hallway, they show off their color spirit. The seventh grade traditional color is orange. "Getting to wear what we wanted was really fun," said Delcambre.

Above: BRUSHING BRAINIAC. Presenting her project in front of the class, Leeanne Richard(7) holds up her demonstration on how to correctly brush your teeth. She showed her class the basics of how to get a clean mouth. "When assigned this, I thought demonstrating how to brush teeth would be the easiest because I do this every night and morning," said Richard.

Right: CUT IT OPEN. Working at the lab in Mrs. Verzwylt's class, Jacob Guidry(7) chuckles at this experiment. Students anticipated this experiment throughout the whole year. "I was laughing because when I cut it open, I said it looked yummy," said Guidry.

Below: STEP ONTO THE RUNWAY. During the fashion show, Alanah Theriot(6) and Tanner Olson(6) dress their part to represent the Disney World characters. They showed off their style of the Disney characters Mikey and Minnie Mouse. "Strutting down the runway was the funnest part because everyone watched us make funny poses," said Olson.

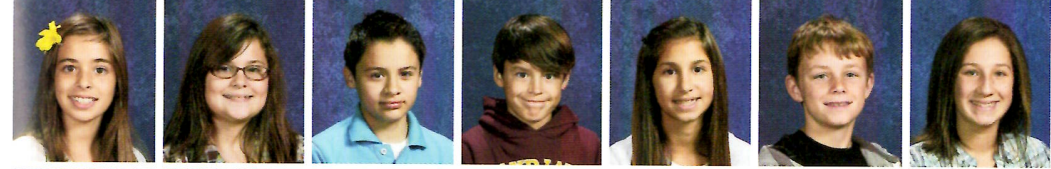

Above: During the Breast Cancer assembly Alexis Reeves(6) hugs the speaker Mrs. Ethel Precht. Along with Mrs. Precht, guest speakers also told their touching stories. "My friend, Mrs. Ethel Precht inspires me very much with her life style, and I felt the need to hug her," said Reeves.

Above: SNACK TIME. During her recess Marissa Dupont(6) helps herself to the snack machine. Not everyone likes the school lunches, so some students resort to the snack machine for their lunch. "I was hungry because I didn't eat lunch, so I bought some Cheetos," said Dupont.

MATH MADE FUN. Concentrating on classwork, Hagyn Miller sits in third hour. Miller had math vocabulary to define in Coach Trevor Hebert's math class. "Coach Hebert is a fun teacher, and makes math fun," said Miller.

Below: DESIGNATED COLOR. During homecoming week, sixth graders, Dallas Theriot, Alexis Reeves, and Keighan Precht flaunt their yellow fashion. Thursday was "color day" so students wore their designated color to represent their grade. "Yellow is my favorite color so I was glad we got to wear it," said Theriot.

Chaotic Year

"My year was chaotic because it was our first year in middle school. I got crushed by the high school people when we went to Mrs. Young's room all the way at the end of the hall. I didn't know where to go for the first few weeks. Lastly, I didn't know where to sit in the gym after lunch," said Dupont.

Above: LOVING AND CARING. Mrs. Marie Delord takes a seat while she bottle feeds a newly found, stray kitten. This kitten was two weeks old and in need of care and a good home. "I enjoyed babysitting for Ms. Fletcher's grandchild," said Mrs. Delord.

Left: BAKERS WOMAN. Baking the hour away, Mrs. Missy Poole prepares cookies for a fundraiser. FACS classes and FCCLA sale cookie grams, which are distributed on Valentine's Day. "Making the homemade chocolate chip cookies are a lot of fun. They are also challenging because it's important to make cookies uniform in size," said Mrs. Poole.

Left: SERVE IT UP. While taking in the cold weather, the cafeteria staff enjoys their ride in the homecoming parade. They showed their hornet pride and threw actual food to the kids. "We all pitched in with the props, saving them up for this float," says Ms. Carmen Dimas.

Left: LISTEN UP. While standing in front of the class, Mr. Jeff Broussard teaches his students about the Fall of New Orleans. Mr. Broussard is always animated during his lectures. "This is me dispersing knowledge with keen and efficient intellect, while students are in awe of the superior nature of my teaching methods," said Mr. Broussard.

Above: SOARING TO NEW HEIGHTS. In preparation for launch, Mrs. Courtney Verzwylt shows a student how to ignite the rocket. Mrs. Verzwylt used her phone to time how long the rockets remained in the air. "3,2,1, blast off," said Mrs. Verzwylt.

It seems like yesterday we brought you home and now we are at your Graduation milestone. Trials, joy and tears lots of hard work in the last couple years. You have become a lady that can venture out on her own. Your diploma means future so reach for all life has to offer. Dare to pursue your goals yet keep your loved ones close. Don't forget to always dream you can achieve anything if you believe. This is not the end just the beginning of a new path you'll make. May God always guide each step you take.

Congratulations Rave Audrionna Styron

Julia,

Its hard to believe it's times to watch you graduate, the time has passed by so quick. Your mom and I have enjoyed the short time we could keep you to ourselves but, it is finally time for the rest of the world to see what a beautiful and talented young lady you have become.

Always remember what we have taught you and let it guide you in lifes journey and you will achive greatness but, no matter where you go or what you do you will always be our little JuJu Bean.

Love Always, Mom and Dad

There was once a boy with a smile so bright that brought us so much love like a big star in the night. No fish or duck would stand in his way. For Gump could still show love in his own gentle way. There once was a boy who now has become a man.

Keep up the good work and always keep God first and you will go a long ways. We are so proud of everything you've accomplished so far. We know that you will do well in the future.

We love you,
Momma, Daddy, Bryon, and Ella

Congratulations Lance!

We remember your first day of school as if it were yesterday. Words can't express how proud we are of you. We couldn't be prouder of the wonderful young man you've become. Our hearts are overflowing with love and pride. You're truly a gift from God. As you follow your dreams, remember how much your family loves you. Life is full of challenges, but we know; you put God first, love in your heart, and keep confidence and determination; your future will be bright. Keep your head high. Reach for your goals you've set for yourself because the sky is your limit.

We love you,
Mom, Dad, and Channing

Lindee,

Dear Lindee,

Your Dad wrote these words to you two years ago and I felt for your next journey these words will ring even louder:

"We use the stepping stones of failure to pave the road of a successful life. I can only hope that we can help you to find and build the straightest path to success."

"Lindee never be afraid of failure, failure is where character is built. Failure is where we find compassion for others who fail. Failures are where we find that we live in a world of imperfection. Some failures are physical, some are spiritual...One of those obligations as a father is to pass the blessing on to his child."

"A blessing is more than just saying I love you. A blessing is a seal between God and the child's father. It is your father's prayer to God in behalf of his child..."

"In God's authority and eternal seal"
Your Loving Father,
Darrell Anthony

I am very proud of you and all that you have accomplished. You are beautiful and intelligent and your future is so bright and I am so blessed to be a part of it.

As you begin this new chapter in your life, always remember to stay true to yourself...never forget where you came from and above all else, know you are loved with every ounce of my heart.

Love,
Suzanne

When you have doubts Lindee, re-read your Dad's blessing to his child, YOU!

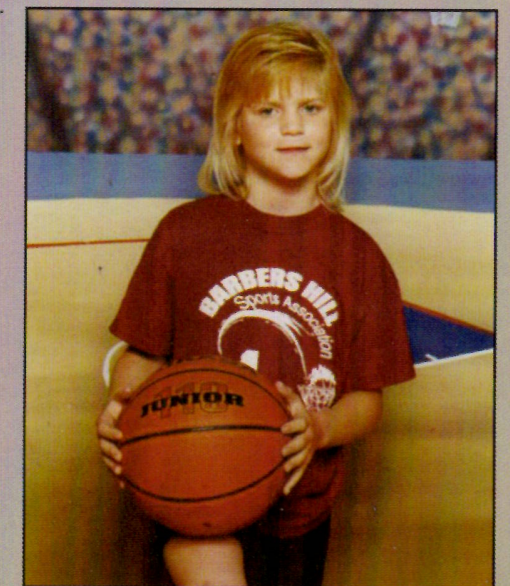

To Our Dear Lindee,

Wow! It's that time in your life that all parents see for their kids, GRADUATION! All parents say this and they mean it, "I'm proud of you," but for you this is especially true.

You have been through many changes (schools, cities, and states) and yet you have stayed focused and on top. As a parent the open conversations you and I have had are about right and wrong, people's responses to situations and your response to these has always amazed me, because you have always taken the high road.

Ever since our first conversation your first day of kindergarten when I told you if you had a problem with another child what you needed to do and you replied, "I can't even call them stupid?" "No Lindee, you can't even call them stupid." Keep taking the high road Lindee.

With all my love,
Mom

To my beautiful daughter I am so grateful God has blessed me with all my children. You have brought a lot of joy into my life. As you well know, there are times throughout life we are tested in our faith, but you know God never leaves our side. This world is beyond our understanding. We've gone through storms and death, but God gave us strength to move on and turn bad things into good. So never lose faith and turn to God and ask him to give you the energy, the determination, and the courage to face all the challenges that life gives you and the grace, peace, and serenity to accept whatever life brings. I want you to remember no matter how old you are or wherever life leads you, I will always love you.

Love,
Mom, Jackie, Katelyn, Chuck, and Kamryn

Kimmie, your dad would be very proud of the beautiful young lady you have become. During his time here on Earth he took time to plant so many seeds. He taught you the most powerful love; the love of God. Just remember even though you are apart, he will always forever be in your heart. Just to let you know your dad will watch you shine, grow, marry, and have children. As long as one and one is two there could never be a father who has loved his children as much as he loved all of you.

Love,
Dad

Staff

The yearbook staff consisted of Jensen Bertand, Colley Conner, Emileigh Creel, Blair Derouen, Jillian Derouen, Blake Ezell, Jasmine Miller, Rebecca Monceaux, Ethan Precht and Katelyn Vincent.

The purpose of this yearbook is to provide a historical record of all the things that influence or affect the school and its students. It is a reference book about and for the school as well as the community. It is a public relations tool that captures the year, just like a time capsule. It is meant to be representative of all students and activities in the school and community; therefore, it does not only cover the popular students and their events. In doing so, it captures the spirit and personality of the school in a responsible and creative way. We try our best to focus coverage on the wants and needs of our audience, as long as those wants and needs are not contradictory to the principles of scholastic journalism.

The yearbook is a student publication, meaning that it is written, designed, and published by high school students. Please know that we have worked very hard to get you a quality yearbook, so if mistakes are found, we apologize and will work even harder to make sure that mistake does not happen again.

Thank You

The yearbook staff would like to thank the teachers for allowing us to enter your class to take pictures or get quotes from students. A big "thank you" goes to our advertisers; your financial support is greatly appreciated.

So obviously building a new track, gym roof, vocational building, and fence with 365 kids walking around sounded like a crazy idea. Clearly we've made it prevalent you should never steal a hornet's nest.
With so many people in one's space,
it becomes hard to express yourself, but Grand Lake students find a way. We're a school full of artists with but us? We like to describe it as personalized chaos.
